Jury Rejects Frame-up Plea

Clintonville Italian Convicted of Serious Crime in County Court—Complaining Witnesses Say Defendant Locked Them in Room—No Locks Found on Doors.

Salvatore Gargano, indicted for robbery, was found guilty Thursday in county court after a trial. It is alleged that the crime took place on January 9, 1925, at Clintonville in the town of Plantville.

During the trial there were charges of untruths and frame-ups by the defendant who took the stand and denied absolutely the charge. He testified that the complaining witnesses had "lied" about the crime and that at the time he was arrested and arraigned before Justice of the Peace D. W. Ostrander in Clintonville the father of one of the complaining witnesses had urged his son on to tell the story and that just prior to his taking the stand which he did with reluctance the father had said in Italian which Judge Ostrander could not understand, "Go on, tell your story, tell them what I told you last night."

The defendant denied that there was any truth to the story and that the charge was a frame-up and that he had heard one of the witnesses say that they would "retreat him."

During the trial there were frequent clashes between counsel for the defendant and the district attorney. The court frequently warned counsel for defendant to discontinue certain lines of testimony in regard to the character of the father of one of the complaining witnesses who did not appear in the case and was not in any way involved in the matter.

Complaining witnesses testified that they had been taken by the defendant to his home and "locked" in a room. The fact that there were no locks on the doors of the house was brought out by the defense and several of the witnesses who examined the house a day or two prior to the trial said that it appeared as though there had been no changes made recently. One witness who lived in the house about five years ago testified that there were no locks on the doors and that the doors were the same today as five years ago.

All of the parties involved in the case are of Italian birth and reside at Clintonville.

Justice of the Peace S. G. Carpenter and Justice of the Peace D. W. Ostrander who held Gargano for the grand jury when he was brought before him appeared for the defendant and District Attorney Traver and Assistant Attorney Mulvey appeared for the People.

Weather Experts Predict Hardest Winter in Years

Say Law of Averages Should Be Discarded If Unprecedented Hard Weather Doesn't Hit America—Nothing But Blizzards Seen.

Washington, Dec. 4.—America's "hardest winter in years" long overdue, is certain to arrive during the next three months, according to the predictions of government weather experts today.

Weather bureau officials declared that if a series of dry blizzards and unprecedented "hard" weather does not sweep the United States this season the "law of averages" should be discarded.

In 1917, records show, the country suffered its last really bitter winter. Comparatively mild winters followed. Last December, based on the rule that a bad winter follows a good one, experts predicted severe weather.

Again now they come forward with the prediction that within the next few weeks "regular" winter will set in and that January, February and March will see the coming of a record winter celebration through the temperate zone.

Included in the unofficial forecast is a white Christmas north of the Mason and Dixon line, with plenty of cold weather in many sections of the south.

New England is one for probably the worst case of winter while the Lake regions, Middle and Northwest will suffer, if the signs are accurate. All the unofficial forecasters along the north Atlantic coast say nothing but blizzards and gales for the next few months. The animals have heavy coats, the squirrels are working over time storing up winter food and the birds on the trees are unusually thick, according to reports.

Already a suggestion of gales has swept the Atlantic seaboard with a heavy toll of lives and shipping property. Run row is reported scattered by gigantic waves and wind and coast wise cities have suffered severely.

Federal Agents Visit Kingston

Agent McKay and Three Others Held to Have Dropped in on William Scully, Henry Klemm and Lyric Theater Building Thursday.

Federal Agent McKay and three assistants were in Kingston Thursday and today, and according to reports visited the places of Henry Klemm and William Scully, both on Mill street, and the former Lyric Theater on the Strand, which is now conducted as a refreshment resort. It is said that the proprietors were all served with summonses to appear in New York today.

The police department when questioned in regard to the matter stated that the federal men had not appeared in police headquarters and all that was known of the men was what had been unofficially reported to the police.

How Agents Worked.

According to reports the four agents waited into the refreshment place in the former Lyric Theater, and known as "Joe's Place," and without announcing that they were federal agents waited behind the bar and took a sample from a jar of what was said to be whiskey and dumped the remainder of the jar into the sink. They also took a bottle of wine and then and noted the proprietor to appear in New York on Monday.

On the Scully and Klemm places on Mill street, they worked somewhat differently. When the four agents entered each place they ordered drinks for the crowd in the place and then took samples of what was served and searched the proprietors to appear in New York on Monday.

Complete Terms Of New Revenue Act Made Public

$225,736,000 Will Be Saved From Annual Tax Burden—$194,575,000 Out From Income Taxes, Balance From Excise and "Nuisance" Taxes.

Washington, Dec. 4.—Congressional tax framers wrote "finis" on their labors today and made public the complete terms of the 1925 revenue act, which will save $225,736,000 from the annual tax burden of the American people.

Of this huge amount $194,575,000 is out from income taxes, through reductions of approximately 30 per cent in both upper and lower brackets, and the balance comes from repeal and reduction of excise and so-called "nuisance" taxes.

Among the latest additions to the bill is one that provides for a joint commission to consist of five members of the senate, five members of the house and five representing the public, to be selected by the president, to investigate and review the whole field of federal taxation with a view to simplification.

Will Be Given Precedence.

House leaders announced that the measure would be laid before congress on Tuesday and given precedence over everything. They predicted its passage by the house in two weeks.

Severest cuts were made in the surtaxes on big incomes, the rate falling from 40 per cent to 20 per cent, as a bid for wealthy to withdraw their money from trust investments and put it to work in productive enterprises.

Small Taxpayer Favored.

Normal rates on small incomes were cut from 2.5 and 5 per cent to 1.5 and 3 per cent. Further relief was accorded the small taxpayer by raising the exemption on unmarried men from $1,000 to $1,500, on married men from $1,500 to $2,500, and in decreasing that all income of whatever source, up to $5,000 shall be considered as "earned" income and entitled to 25 per cent deduction thereby. The limit on earned income was placed at $20,000.

Surtaxes start at 1 per cent on net incomes of $10,000-$15,000 and increase gradually until tax of $12,500 is imposed on net incomes at the $100,000 stage. After that the surtax rate of 20 per cent prevails.

The gift tax was repealed entirely, and the state tax greatly reduced, the new figure being one per cent of estates of $5,000-$100

CANNIBALS RULE AUSTRALIA WILDS

Territory Larger Than Texas Entirely Dominated by Savages.

Newcastle, Australia.—Recent developments of a startling and tragic nature in the wild and little known region of northwest Australia have led to a demand by the white population of the commonwealth that the government take immediate measures to check the reign of savagery that completely dominates a territory larger than the state of Texas. The uncivilized blacks of this almost unexplored region know little and care less about the white man's government which is supposed to control northwest Australia, and the few missionaries who have been during enough to seek contact with the aborigines have been forced to flee for their lives.

Barbarism is in as full sway over a country comprising many thousands of square miles as it was a century ago. The natives are the most savage of head-hunters and more blood-thirsty cannibals than those of New Guinea. All of which is proved by an almost incredible story which has just reached the eastern settlements.

A Blood Feud.

Not long ago the newspapers of the world contained a paragraph or two to the effect that a pearling schooner had been driven ashore on the wild northwest coast, its crew captured by natives, killed and eaten. Now another pearler has been forced ashore in the same region and some of its crew have met tragic deaths, with the result that a blood feud of appalling savagery has developed between the few white men of the territory and a friendly tribe on the one hand, and the hordes of savages on the other. According to the latest reports reaching the East, the friendly tribe and most of the whites have been completely wiped out, and many victims taken in the course of barbaric orgies beyond anything known to the Romans or the New Hebrides half a century ago.

The pearler was driven ashore in one of the gales prevalent in this quarter of the Indian ocean, at Cape Voltaire, in Montague sound, the heart of the wildest region of all Western Australia. The crew managed to make shore with a few provisions and a small boat. Having been tossed about in the hurricane several days they had little or no idea where they were, except that the region was probably a most hostile one.

After waiting for many days in the hope of sighting a passing sail, two of the number, chosen by lot, set forth westward to search for some settlement or a mission station on the coast. After a journey fraught with extreme hardships and every possible danger from wild animals and wilder men, they did succeed in reaching a remote mission post. But to their dismay they found that the only boat the missionaries possessed had been wrecked a few days before in another gale, and to retrace the journey on foot was unthinkable.

The two white men therefore pressed on 200 miles more to a little settlement named Boolgin, near Cape Leveque, Western Australia, the only white settlement in a region comprising some 25,000 square miles. Here a lugger was procured and a relief expedition set out for Montague sound.

Poisoned Spears.

In the meantime so many weeks had elapsed that the rest of the shipwrecked crew, now nearly starved, concluded that their comrades had been captured by the blacks, and two more men volunteered as a last resort to set out inland in the hope of reaching a government outpost more than 300 miles through the bush. They finally came to the Hunter river and followed upstream for some distance, at last making camp in a state of utter exhaustion. Apprehensive as they were of a native attack, they were too utterly weary to take any further precautions. The result was that the blacks, who had been stalking them many days, advanced and delivered a volley with "woomeras," or poison-tipped spears. Both white men were instantly killed and doubtless eaten.

About this time the relief expedition was setting forth from Cape Leveque for Montague sound. Upon arrival only three or four of the crew were found, the rest having disappeared in the bush. Several armed men, therefore, set forth upon the trail. A friendly tribe was encountered and from them it was learned the savages to whom the two white men had fallen victims were of the Warranerie tribe and that they had never before seen a white man.

With the friendly tribe was a boy named Horrie, who had been mission-taught and he volunteered to lead a band of heavily armed white men further into the bush on the trail of the murdering savages. After an adventurous pursuit of 100 miles or more several stragglers were caught and taken back loaded with chains to the nearest white settlement.

The Black's Triumph.

Then, when it was learned that the capture was due to the assistance of a black of another tribe, a blood feud to the death was declared. The friendly natives were informed through devious means that the "death blow" of the Australian aborigines had been pointed toward them; but, mission-educated, they scorned the superstition.

For weeks a bush warfare ensued, several other savage tribes joining against the friendly blacks and their white allies. Finally a climactic conflict developed far into the heart of the unexplored and little-known bush of northwest Australia. The battle song was an incantation of the medicine men of the savage aborigines against the friendly black, who had led other natives on behalf of the hated white man. Horrie must be captured for the torture, or, at least, killed.

After a short and savage fray the cannibal tribes gained the ascendancy, the mission boy was killed and his body captured, to be dealt with according to the unspeakable rites of the Australian blacks, with which not half a dozen white men in Australia are familiar. In the meantime the friendly tribe was forced further into the bush and cut off from its handful of white allies, who escaped to the nearest settlements and notified the territorial officials at Broome, the principal seaport on the northwest coast. The last heard of the friendly blacks was that they were surrounded somewhere on the Glenelg river, in the heart of the wildest bush country of Western Australia, with every probability of being entirely destroyed.

This story, well authenticated and by no means the first of its kind within the last few years, has astounded "civilized" Australia, especially the folk of the Eastern cities.

Wild Pigeons All Gone

Vast numbers of wild pigeons were seen in this country prior to 1895, though not in such great numbers as earlier in the century, namely, 1800 to 1850. The slaughter of these pigeons raged for years with nets, traps and guns, and by 1894 there were very few of the wild pigeons seen in this country. By 1900 they had dwindled down to a few specimens left in captivity in Milwaukee and in the Cincinnati zoo. Martha, the last known wild pigeon, died 2 p. m., August 29, 1914, at the age of twenty-nine. According to all ornithological data available, she was the last of her tribe in the world. Martha's mate died in 1910, and though a prize of $1,000 was offered for a mate, none was ever found.

Nothing to Worry About

To hear some young women talk they would be very choosy in selecting a husband. When it comes to domestic ability, men are not so finicky, if we may believe this paragraph from Judge: The ceremony over, the wife began to weep copiously. "What's the matter?" asked the new husband. "I never told you that I don't know how to cook," sobbed the bride. "Don't fret," said he, "I'll not have anything to cook. I'm an editor."—Capper's Weekly.

KINGSTON, N. Y., DEC. 4, 1925.

Tokuziro Fukuda, formerly a major in the Japanese army, has spent fourteen months in the kitchen and dining rooms of the Waldorf-Astoria as a preparation for going into the hotel business. Doubtless an American in that business would smilingly inform him that that may be a good way to become a chef but a waste of time on the part of a man who wants to run a modern hotel.

The news comes from Venice that 25 gondolas are being shipped to a Florida real estate company which will employ them to add picturesque to its particular resort. Though out of character, gondolas might be a pretty sight on a Florida lake, but it may be safely predicted that the get-rich-quickers of that state, and even the average bustling American tourist, will vote them altogether too slow.

"YOU PAYS YOUR MONEY"

Probably only partisans will take the time to read through or study the detailed report of the Moderation League on the prohibition situation in the United States. The general public is wearying of the claims and charges of the two sides of the controversy, and this by itself is rather discouraging. A reliable summary of the report reads as follows: "The statistics of the Moderation League show, after all deductions have been made for growth of population and other variants, a swift rise in drunkenness in 1915-16, a swift decrease in 1917-19 under wartime restrictions, a continued decrease through the first year of the dry law, and then a sharp turn and an equally swift increase which probably continues to the present day, with all its added dangers to public health from poisonous drinks." There is much variation in the returns from different cities and sections and, as a rule, the conditions are worse in former dry States than in States made dry by the eighteenth amendment. On the other hand, the general counsel of the Anti-Saloon League contents himself with giving the lie to the Moderation League's report, declaring that "one by one the leaks in the prohibition dam are being corked" and the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals, demanding an even more drastic law, notifies congress that "any proposition to modify the Volstead act will bring disaster upon the administration which favors it, will wreck the party which approves it."

This is hardly a case of "you pays your money and you takes your choice," for whether or not you make a choice—of the two conflicting views—you will pay your money (in taxes) for years to come to replace the government's loss of revenue and provide the enormous expense of the enforcement campaign.

UNCONSCIOUS FILM HUMOR.

Miss Agnes Repplier is not less entertaining than usual in her article, "The Unconscious Humor of the Movies," in the November Atlantic Monthly, and she does not fail to prove her point. At the same time there is a suggestion of humor not intended in her article's betrayal of the fact that she has been a frequent attendant of movie performances for years past, never omitting to see any production that might be classed as relatively worth while. Of course Miss Repplier may be ready to confess this without shame, but, if so, she would put herself out of the class of "highbrows" to which she is supposed to belong, the representatives of which affect to disdain "the movies" and would be painfully embarrassed if caught in one.

Miss Repplier praises the photography and the skill of the producers, but tramples on the actors. For example: "The exodus of the Jews in 'The Ten Commandments' was a thing of beauty. The passage of the Red Sea was a thing of wonder. But the American men and women who obeyed or disobeyed the Commandments were puppets jerked by cords, compared with whom Italian marionettes appear refreshingly spontaneous and intelligent." In "The Covered Wagon" the hero, whether fighting Indians or tending the villain "always finds time and hot water for a shave," and the heroine grows duces from her wagon on the western plains in pioneer days "the wedding garments of sophistication." Nor is Miss Repplier content to make game of mere actors who love modish clothes better than fidelity to role and scene, for she exultingly chronicles the rumor that Thomas Hardy's Tess "was hanged in one State and reprieved in another, according to the prejudices of the censors."

That Body of Yours

A POINT ABOUT CANCER.

Our research men tell us that there is really no chemical difference between normal cells and cancer cells. That is insofar as they have been able to demonstrate by experiments.

Cells taken from a cancer in the thyroid gland in the neck were able to do the same work as the normal cells, that is to manufacture the same juice as the normal glands, and to store iodine in a similar manner.

The coloring matter or pigment manufactured by liver cells was likewise manufactured by the cancer cells found in the liver.

Your physiology taught you that the ordinary cells in the body will not grow or perform their work unless they are supplied with oxygen from the blood. In other words in order that any work can be performed there must be a burning of something, or oxidation.

A European scientist now tells us that this does not apply to cancer cells. They seem to be able to increase in size and number without any oxygen supply.

This does not mean that they do not multiply in the presence of oxygen, but that they multiply whether or not there is an oxygen supply.

Cohnheim taught us many years ago that cancers were just groups of cells that should have developed before we were born, but lay undeveloped until something irritated them, and then they started to make up for lost time—forty years or more—and hence the tremendous growth.

That the cancer cells are able to make a short cut to growth and development by being able to do without oxygen is a most interesting theory.

What about this for you?

That the old saying, "Cancer does not start in sound tissue" is worth remembering.

Something about you, perhaps your heredity, perhaps your habits, gives cancer its start.

See your doctor about any and every kind of lump or irritation.

If mirrors are well placed they help immeasurably in conveying the impression that a room is larger than it really is. In a small room a mirror is indispensable—it may be over the fireplace or at the end of the room; in the latter case draperies on either side add to the effect.

150 YEARS AGO

The Origin of the U. S. A.

By Jonathan A. Rawson, Jr.

CIVIL WAR IN VIRGINIA.

It has been said in these narratives that the American Revolution was two wars in one—that the forefathers who fought for independence had two enemies, the British and mercenary soldiers, and the Tories or Loyalists. The latter lived in America to be sure, but they had never become American enough to be happy except as subjects of a royal sovereign. Or they had business relations or political jobs which might suffer if the tie with England were to be broken.

In the fall of 1775 this Civil War between Patriots and Tories was more critical in Virginia than elsewhere because Lord Dunmore, the British governor of Virginia, was maintaining himself on a warship in Norfolk harbor, and doing his best to organize an armed force of Tories, Indians, and freed slaves and indentured servants. Chiefly because of its business interests, but also because it was dominated by Dunmore's guns, Norfolk was then a hotbed of Toryism, though the Old Dominion as a whole was strongly patriotic. The patriots had built up a government of their own at Williamsburg, and assembled there two regiments of militia. The first skirmish between militia and Dunmore's men, a defeat for the militia, had emboldened Dunmore to attempt greater things. The Virginians learned that he was planning to establish Norfolk still more solidly as a base for his activities, and Colonel William Woodford set out from Williamsburg with the second Virginia regiment to spell Dunmore's plan for setting up at Great Bridge a barrier against a patriot advance into Norfolk.

Great Bridge was not a town but actually a bridge over the east branch of the Elizabeth river. It connected at each end with long causeways which crossed wide stretches of swampy land on the river banks. Arriving on the south bank on December 1, Woodford's Virginians found that Dunmore had built a fort on an island near the north bank of Norfolk side of the river. Woodford took his stand at the south end of the bridge and causeways.

On December 1, Dunmore opened fire across the river, killing one Virginian. Two nights later he sent a party to burn shanties which might afford shelter for the Virginians. On the following night, 150 years ago today, Woodford made a similar raid for a similar purpose. Then on the night of December 6 Woodford surprised Dunmore's boat guards and routed them with a loss of five killed and several wounded and captured. These skirmishes were but preliminaries to the encounter which was to take place on December 9, 1775, which will be reported in this series of stories on December 9, 1925.

BEAUTIFUL PAGEANT AT CLINTON AVE. CHURCH

The beautiful pageant, "The Challenge of the Cross" will again be given by the Epworth League of the Clinton Avenue Church on Thursday evening, December 10. This pageant was recently presented with great success and made a lasting impression on a large audience.

Several requests have been made by those who witnessed it and by those who did not see it to have this wonderful production repeated and so it will be given in the church auditorium at 7:30 next Thursday evening.

No admission will be charged and the public is cordially invited to witness this great and true story.

WORKMAN WAS CRUSHED BENEATH BIG MACHINE.

Albert Lee, 35 years old, employed by the Turner Construction Company, which is engaged on a big contract for the Acme Cement Company at Catskill, was seriously injured Monday afternoon when a large cement conveyor, weighing 2,800, dropped on him. Lee was standing beneath the machine and was not fatally killed was instantaneous. He was struck a glancing blow, however, which knocked him down, pinning him to the ground. His shoulder was badly crushed. He was removed to a hospital in Albany, where it is expected he will recover.

EVENING
FAIRY TALE

By Mary Graham Bonner

FIRST SCHOOL DAY

Parent Natalie was a born cook. She said so herself. She even boasted of it to Mother Fenwick as she urged her to eat her breakfast.

But Mother Fenwick was not so much interested in the fact that Parent Natalie called herself a born cook.

"How were you a born cook?" she asked. "You didn't begin to cook the minute you were born, did you? Did you wear that apron right away? How could you have when you were just a little baby and not able to walk? You wore long clothes, didn't you? It seems to me I almost remember you."

"Remember me?" Nonsense child, children don't remember their parents when they were little. And get on with your breakfast now. This oatmeal is good for you."

"But I don't like it," Mother Fenwick protested.

"Never mind whether you like it or not, it's good for you and you must eat it."

Slowly, little Mother Fenwick began eating again.

"I think Old Man Slow Poke is around this morning," Parent Natalie commented.

"Daddy Fenwick!" she called.

"Aren't you dressed yet?"

Daddy Fenwick came in the door. He sat down and began his breakfast.

"Parent Natalie," said Mother Fenwick, "I hate this dress. Do I have to wear it? Brown isn't becoming to me."

"My dear child," Parent Natalie answered, "you should be very thankful that you've got a good, kind aunt to send you that dress. Really, I've never seen a dress I thought looked so well on you. It's far better than we could afford to buy. When your Aunt Chloe sent it she wrote that her little Chloe hadn't worn it out by any manner of means, but that she didn't believe in sending clothes after they were all worn out. I am sure people wouldn't be so kind."

"Aunt Chloe didn't like it," Mother Fenwick said.

GAS BUGGIES—A Close Call.

I'VE GOT A HUNCH THAT BIRD HOLE WE RENTED THE GARAGE TO IS A NUT, SURE ENOUGH—WE'LL HAVE TO WATCH OUR STEP WITH HIM—THEY'RE HARMLESS IF YOU DON'T CROSS 'EM—BUT WHEN YOU DO—IT'S CURTAINS—

IT'S BEEN OUT IN THE GARAGE FOR A LONG TIME—I WISH YOU'D LOOK AND SEE WHAT HE'S DOING—I'M LERBY OF HIM—

HELLO, MR. HOLE—NOTICED YOU WERE OUT HERE QUITE AWHILE, SO I THOUGHT I'D COME OUT AND SEE IF YOU'RE HAVING TROUBLE—

MY SWITCH KEY FELL DOWN THROUGH THE FLOOR-BOARDS AND I'VE BEEN TRYING TO FISH IT OUT—IF I HAD OLD CLOTHES ON LIKE YOU HAVE—

HERE—LET ME GET IT FOR YOU—YOU'RE LIABLE TO GET YOUR NICE SUIT DIRTY—I'VE GOT IT RIGHT HERE—

THAT'S AWFULLY NICE OF YOU—I CERTAINLY DO APPRECIATE YOUR KINDNESS—

WHAT WERE YOU DOING UNDER HIS CAR—YOU'RE TAKING AN AWFUL CHANCE EXPOSING YOURSELF THAT WAY—DEAR KNOWS WHAT HE MIGHT DO—

WHEN A CUCKOO LIKE THAT DROPS YOU A HINT, THE WISE THING TO DO IS TAKE IT—THAT'S BETTER THAN GETTING A CRACK OVER THE HEAD—ISN'T IT—

I WAS LUCKY THIS TIME—THAT'S JUST LIKE A NUT—ONE DAY, FIERCE THE NEXT—

The KITCHEN CABINET

(By 1925, Western Newspaper Union)

It is never too late to begin. History is full of men and women who were failures at first and famous at last.

The way to be really happy is to like the things you have.

SAVORY FOOD

Save the coarser outside stalks of celery and cut into half-inch pieces.

Cook until tender, then put into a baking dish with a layer of thick white sauce, a layer of grated cheese, and repeat. Cover with buttered crumbs and bake until the crumbs are brown.

Larded Beef Tenderloin—Cut the salt pork for larding from the firm portion under the rind. Cut the lardons one-fourth inch wide and as long as the pork slices permit. Chill the lardons in ice water before threading them and insert one-fourth inch below the surface and draw through, tying in a loose knot. Arrange in rows or triangles, dredge the tenderloin with seasoned flour, brown in a hot frying pan, turning often to keep from scorching. Then cook slowly until well cooked. Serve with baked potatoes and butter.

Provolone Sauce—Put two tablespoons of the trimmings from the salt pork into a saucepan to fry out. Add two slices of onion, five of carrot, two sprigs of parsley, a quarter of a bay leaf, a slice of green pepper and half a chili pepper; cook until soft, drain off the fat, add one-fourth of a cupful of vinegar and let simmer until the vinegar is reduced to one-half. To the fat add enough butter to make four tablespoonsful, add the same amount of flour and cook until smooth, then add one and one-half cupfuls of brown stock, the vegetables and the vinegar, boil up once, strain over one-half cupful of salted raisins cooked in boiling water until tender, add three tablespoonsful of currant jelly and the same of orange juice.

Fried Egg Plant—Puree and cut the egg plant into thin slices. Pile on a large plate and sprinkle each slice with salt. Cover with another plate and put a heavy weight on top. Let stand an hour or two, remove the weight, rinse each slice in cold water, wipe dry and dip in beaten egg, then in seasoned crumbs and fry brown in butter. For fritters dip into fritter batter and fry in deep fat.

THE VLY.

The Vly. Dec. 3.—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Krom and daughters, Ethel and Alveta, spent Thanksgiving Day in Montgomery.

A pleasant afternoon was spent at the home of Mrs. Elmer Christina on Saturday. Those who were present were Mrs. Charles Krom, Eleanor Mueller, Ethel Krom, Alveta Krom and Theresa Castello.

A surprise party was given to Walter Mueller on Friday night. A large crowd was present and a most enjoyable evening was spent.

Clyde Pelen and friend were home for the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. John Wurster and son spent Thanksgiving at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Wurster.

Reginald Jones has left for Florida, where he will spend the winter.

Charles Krom and family were out riding Sunday afternoon.

There will be a Christmas entertainment given by The Vly. school. A letter has been written for Santa Claus to be present.

The Vly. is well supplied with radios. Interesting programs are being heard every night.

A goodly number turned out for the Ladies Aid meeting.

Harold Trembridge made a business trip to Kitchener one day this week.

Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Robbins and Miss Elsie Mueller and Walter Mueller spent one day in Kingston last week.

Henry Bush was in this place on Sunday.

Mrs. George Wurster was a caller at the home of Mrs. H. Mueller on Monday.

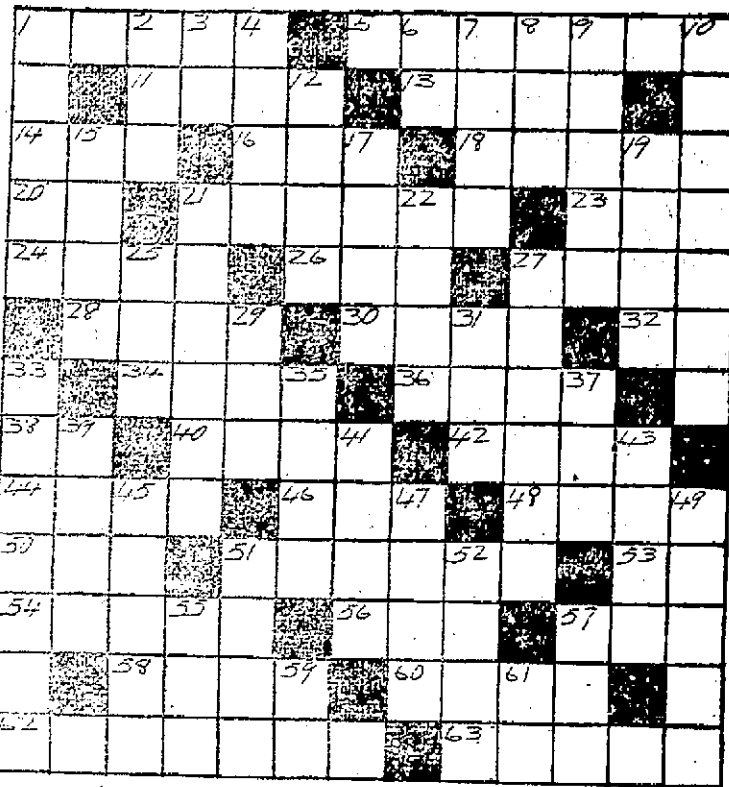

Church services on Sunday, December 6, at 8 o'clock. Mr. Smith will be the speaker for the afternoon. All are welcome.

Things to Avoid

Do not be over kind of anything, or consider that for some reason which makes you break your word, quit your money or anything else in the way of which will put you in the line or back the world to the form.

Country Boys Rough

Nate, a small, delicate boy, and his mother were visiting friends in the country where boys of Nate's age were robust and rather rough in manner.

The boys were all out at play when presently Nate went quietly into the house, where his mother was.

She saw that he was troubled and asked what was wrong.

Nate began to cry and said: "Those boys play harder'n I fight."

SCIENCE FINDS SUPER X-RAYS

Dr. R. A. Millikan Describes
New Discovery to National Academy.

Madison, Wis.—His success in isolating a ray with energy greater than any other known and with a frequency a thousand times higher than the frequency of the ultra X-ray, was related by Prof. R. A. Millikan of the California Institute of Technology at the meeting of the National Academy of Sciences here.

Professor Millikan told of the work that has been done in the study of the new ray with first experiments made by sending up balloons containing elec-troscopes which showed that the ions increased with altitude. The first studies of this nature were made by German professors before the war and since then Professor Millikan has sent up small balloons with instruments from Kelly aviation field, which, in general, bore out the findings of the German scientists.

Gets Results at Ten Miles.

Professor Millikan noted the increase in the number of ions with altitude, one of his recording machines having ascended to a height of ten miles.

In order to sift out the influence of radioactive substances, tests were taken under water, but it was found that the liquid was radioactive and snow water-fed Lake Mair on Mount Whitney was next taken as the scene of experiments. Here it was found that through lowering the instruments to certain depths the hard rays could be eliminated. The same experiments were later tried at Arrowhead lake, 300 miles distant, but also, a great height, with approximately the same result.

The increase in lakes at high altitudes caused Professor Millikan to conclude that "there was something that brought absorption other than radioactive substances."

Sun Has No Effect.

Professor Millikan found that there was something coming in from the outside, with the action of all radioactive material barred. He found further that ionization was the same at all times of the day and that the sun had no effect on the ionization of the communications.

The rays are of the 10,000,000-volt variety, Professor Millikan declared, and concluded that they are due to atoms changing over to other atoms.
"The energy of the ray is that of an electron being captured by a heavy nucleus," he asserted. "The rays are all through space, bombarding the earth from all directions. They are of extraordinary absorbing power and come to the earth with equal intensity day and night."

Professor Millikan did not discuss any practical purpose the rays might serve. It has been suggested that this cosmic ray is a counter force to gravitation, perhaps responsible for the intinal activity of planetary bodies, and that its influence in the universe prevents the force of gravity from bringing all celestial bodies into one mass.

Chimpanzees Solve Tests When Some Children Fail

New Haven, Conn.—Chimpanzees can readily solve some problems which are difficult for intelligent children of corresponding maturity, according to scientific tests being conducted at Yale university. Announcement of these tests was made by Robert M. Yerkes, professor of psychology at the Institute of Psychology.

"Many of the tests are negative," Doctor Yerkes said, "but we get some positive results. It is often surprising to see that children, when confronted with some of the problems, bright children, too, will fail to solve them."

Little Is Understood of Insect Migration

There is, of course, a great deal that we do not know. In the final analysis, "all things go out into mystery," and your most dry-as-dust professor left at the center of his laboratory with his mouth open and his short-sighted eyes raised in a childish query. Still, he has detected law and order and reasonableness, and the succession of cause and effect in many branches of biology, including bird migration.

It is not so with insect migration, which may be on a big scale. This remains a thoroughly-mysterious, still quite unexplained, in fact, we are certain quite a considerable number of butterflies from overseas, through their arrival or passage over the sea is rarely observed. But such little flights of a hundred miles or so are as nothing compared with some recent examples.

Butterflies with 3,000 miles on occasion. That lovely creature, but on summer here as we could wish—the pointed leaf, was supposed to be landed at the end of a journey—so it is credited—alleged—from Africa. Quite large groups of white butterflies have settled on ships in the Mediterranean, on their way from south to north. So Africa certainly exchanges insects with Europe—Mr. W. Beach Thomas in the Outlook.

Railroads Can Dispute Claims to Precedence

There probably will be all sorts of troubles and disputes in the near future over the question of precedence among American railroads. Just as there were a few years ago over the date and identity of the first steam locomotive, it seems not unlikely that the issue will have to be decided and disputed in the future. The first road on which wheels ran on rails was probably that on Faneuil Hill in Boston, in 1827. The first road to employ steam power seems to have been the 27-mile stretch laid by the Baltimore & Annapolis Railroad in 1830 from Baltimore to Annapolis, Md. The first road to carry passengers was probably the Baltimore & Ohio, which in May, 1830, began running from Baltimore to Baltimore, 12 miles, by horse power.

Famous Obelisk

The obelisk in Central park, New York, is thirty-five centuries old. As the Standard Guide to New York remarks: "It was old when Moses read his instructions in honor of the Egyptian god and." It stood before the temple of the Sun at Heliopolis, near Cairo, where it was erected in the thirteenth century B. C. by Thutmose III.

III. In twelve B. C. Augustus Caesar carried the obelisk to Alexandria. Here it and two others were erected before the temple of the Caesars. In 1877 it was presented by the khedive of Egypt to the United States, and brought to America by Lieutenant Commander Gorringe, U. S. N. It was erected in Central park in 1881. William H. Vanderbilt bore the expense of removal, which was $102,575. The obelisk is a monolith of syenite from the granite quarries of Syene, Egypt. The shaft is 68½ feet high, 7 feet 8 inches by 7 feet 8 inches at the base and weighs 445,000 pounds.

Escaped Russian Prisoner

After 11 years' imprisonment in Russia, during which he made several unsuccessful attempts to escape, Paul Cern, sculptor, recently reached Boston. During the Russian campaign of the German army in August, 1914, Cern was wounded and taken prisoner. When he recovered, he says, he was assigned to a Russian working squad and put at hard labor. His repeated attempts to escape were frustrated until this year, when Cern and three companions succeeded in crossing the border.

Household Course At Kerhonkson

Public Invited To Course On Household Subjects—Three-Day Schedule Begins Tuesday In Knights of Pythias Hall, Kerhonkson.

The home service department of the Kingston Gas & Electric Company which has proved so popular and helpful in other communities is now made available to Kerhonkson and vicinity as part of the territory served by this company.

To introduce this department for personal service to housewives, in Kerhonkson and nearby communities, a free course on household subjects will be held on December 6, 7 and 8 in the Knights of Pythias Hall, Kerhonkson. This will be conducted by Miss Margaret H. Bodkin, home service director for the Kingston Gas & Electric Company. The sessions on Tuesday and Wednesday will be for housewives, while the third session Thursday evening will be open to all the family as a community get-together. In addition to the regular home service program, a short welcoming talk will be given by Charles A. Lashier, commercial manager of the Kingston Gas and Electric Company. The home service course is open without charge to residents of these communities whether or not they are customers of the company. It is a community educational activity part of the greater service rendered by the Central Hudson System of which the Kingston company is a member.

A variety of interesting subjects will be covered by Miss Bodkin, who will give actual demonstrations of modern household appliances at each session, and will distribute printed recipes and other household suggestions.

Tuesday, December 6—2 to 3:30 p. m. holiday suggestions for menu planning.

Wednesday, December 7—2 to 3:30 p. m. effortless cleaning.

Thursday, December 8—5 to 9:30 p. m. use of electric table appliances. Special community get-together.

All sessions will be held in the Knights of Pythias Hall, Kerhonkson.

Bro's Williams

"No," said Brother Williams, "I don't buy goods on de long installment plan, and then pray for the world and so I won't have ter pay ter em."—Atlanta Constitution.

STONE RIDGE.

Stone Ridge, Dec. 3.—On Tuesday, December 8, the annual fair and supper of the C. E. Society will be held in the assembly room of the Reformed Church. At 4 p. m. will open the sale of useful and fancy articles, home made candy, etc. At 6 p. m. a good supper will be served. In the evening there will also be a "surprise."

Calvin Hissbrouck had the misfortune to fall and break his collar bone and two ribs.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Teller and Mrs. Keater spent Thanksgiving with Dr. and Mrs. Sherman.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Davis entertained the following guests on Thanksgiving: Mr. and Mrs. Fred Davis, Alberta Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Don Gillespie, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence DeVos, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Horabek.

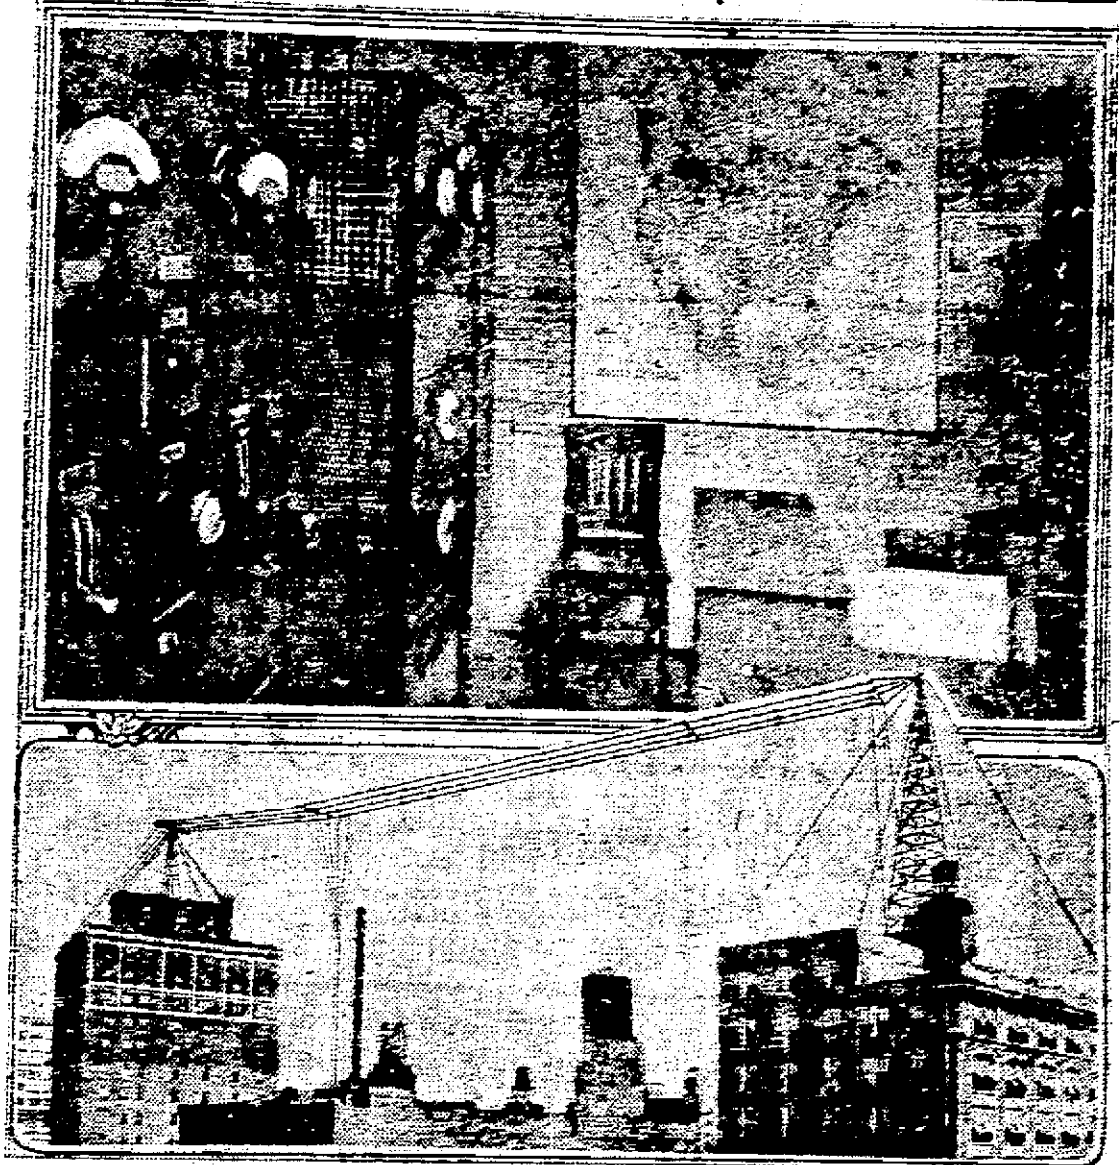

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Service expect to spend a week in New York city.

The regular Grange dance will be held on Friday evening, December 4. Each Granger may invite one friend. The written invitation will admit the guest.

Half the world seems determined to run down the other half.—Detroit Free Press.

Broadcasting Stations You Have Heard—WFAA

Above: Apparatus room of WFAA, the Dallas News. This adjoins the attractive studio. Below: the antenna boom up on the horizon in an unusual span.

The Dallas News stretches the antenna of its broadcasting station over a good part of a city block. This gives it an unusually excellent position in the sky-line. WFAA has a five hundred watt Western Electric equipment and employs a wave length of 476 meters. Although the Dallas News is an outstanding Texas institution, those who listen to the programs of WFAA are scattered over the whole country and by visualizing the geographical extent of the Dallas News radio circulation.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchitis, asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

"As regular as the morning's milk"

RAILROAD milk service has made Americans the greatest milk drinkers in the world. To keep the millions of our people in the cities supplied requires a veritable river of milk on the rails day in and day out.

Every day there is brought by rail to the environs of New York City about 4,200,000 quarts of refrigerated milk—almost two quarts for every family in the metropolitan district. Of this amount, New York Central carries about 45 per cent, or ten trainloads daily of 20 cars each.

Railroad milk service has also brought prosperity to far away farms. Some New York Central milk trains carry milk into New York City from farms more than 400 miles away, but it is served on breakfast tables in the City the morning after it is delivered to the railroad.

The saying "as regular as the morning's milk" is a tribute to the kind of railroading that is standard on New York Central Lines.

Life in Persia

Young Persia.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

PERSIA, whose throne has just been assumed by Riza Khan after the deposition of the shah, is one of the oldest empires in existence. It has had a royal ruler for 25 centuries—ever since Cyrus the Great, about 550 B. C. conquered Media and united that country to his under the name of Persia. It has had many glorious episodes in its long history; has produced the great teacher Zoroaster, such world-famous poets as Firdausi, Omar Khayyam, Saadi and Hafiz, and such great soldiers and rulers as Darius I, Shapur I and Shah Abbas.

Again and again the empire has been a prey to anarchy; again and again conquering hosts have swept through the country. The most destructive conqueror was Genghis Khan with his hordes of savage Mongols—a leader who boasted that he had slain 13,000,000 of his fellow creatures.

At the present day, though shorn of its former dimensions, Persia is more than three times the size of France, yet it has only nine and a half millions of inhabitants—fifteen to a square mile. As the population of the whole country is not equal to that of London, New York and Paris combined, none will be astonished to learn that it is possible to travel for days at a time without coming across a village or even a human being.

The center of the country is a great plateau, rising from 2,000 to 6,000 feet, and crossed by frequent chains of mountains, while a lofty mountain barrier bounds it on the north and south.

The climate on this plateau is a fine one—dry and bracing, cold in winter and often intensely hot in summer. The Lut, or desert, once an inland sea, occupies the center of Persia, cutting off the north from the south and the east from the west, and thus rendering communication difficult. In fact, it helps to make transport so costly that the different districts and principal towns are practically isolated and cannot depend upon other parts of the country, even in such a case as that of famine.

There are great differences of climate in the kingdom, the low-lying, feverish district around the Caspian with its dense forests and 50 inches of rainfall, being in complete contrast to the arid uplands, where as a rule not a tree or blade of grass is to be seen save on the irrigated ground round a village.

Again, on the shores of the Persian gulf, the humid heat during summer is well-nigh intolerable to Europeans, and the groves of date-palms that constitute the wealth as well as staple food of the inhabitants are only possible where there is irrigation, so rainfall is this torrid region.

Poor Transport and Hotels.

In the whole Persian empire there are only 350 miles of railway. There is only one navigable river, the Karun, that flows into the head of the Persian gulf, and on this sea the so-called ports are merely open roadsteads, at which cargo cannot be landed in stormy weather.

The merchandise of Persia is practically all carried on the backs of camels, mules and donkeys, a slow and expensive mode of transport, and the traveler usually rides through the country following the tracks made by the passage of caravans during the centuries.

It will be readily understood that hotels must be bad if not nonexistent; and indeed the ordinary caravanserai, swarming with vermin, with only openings in its walls in place of doors and windows, with no furniture of any description, and hardly any food, would appal any one unaccustomed to eastern travel.

The Persian is of Aryan stock and has the same words as ourselves for father, mother, brother, and daughter (father, mother, brother, and daughter), and the construction of his language is like that of English. He is a handsome, well-built man with regular features and fine black eyes, his complexion being no darker than that of an Italian. In manner, he is most courteous; he is quick, alert, fond of conversation and discussion, and has been rightly called the Frenchman of the East.

Persia has been a Mohammedan country from the time of its conquest by the Arabs in 641; but some thousands of Zoroastrians, the old fire worshippers, still remain in the land and have been much persecuted.

Domestic Life.

In order to understand Persian domestic life at the present day, we must carry ourselves back to the patriarchal times. The Persian is lord and master of his house much as was Abraham and Jacob. He has enormous power over the persons of his wives, children and dependents, all of whom he can treat much as he pleases.

When a woman is handed over to her husband with her dowry, he regards her far more as a chattel than as a wife. She may never show her face to any man save her husband and her near relatives, and owing to the extreme seclusion in which she lives, it is most difficult for her to get justice should she be ill-treated. There are certain laws for her benefit in such cases as that of divorce, but these are only enforced when a man divorces his wife. If the case be reversed and the woman carries her slipper to the judge and demands separation from her husband, the latter is not obliged to refund the dowry that he received with her.

Brutal husbands who wish to be rid of their wives and yet retain their dowry sometimes ill-use them in order to force them to sue for a divorce themselves.

If a man is angered with his wife and says three times, "I divorce you," he has legally severed himself from her, and should he desire to have her back again, she will be obliged to marry and then be divorced by another man. The happiness and position of a Persian woman usually depends upon her children. Her great wish is to present her lord with sons.

The "strénuous life" finds no favor in Persia, the idea of a young Persian being to act as a hanger-on at court, or to be included in the suite of some governor of a province or high official, such sinecures being spoken of as "doing service."

Prayers and Food.

The well-to-do Persian is roused before sunrise by the call of the mezzin summoning all men to prayer. He throws aside the padded quilts that form his bed, hastily dons his garments, and exchanges the felt slippers in which he sleeps for the black lamb's-wool hat. His servant then pours water over his hands, and he washes his face, arms and feet before prostrating himself on his prayer carpet, which is turned in the direction of Mecca.

After his devotions (which he repeats at noon and at sunset) are accomplished, he partakes again of much-sweetened tea without milk, and with it eats a thin cake of starchy bread and some sweets. Then he smokes a khalan, or water-pipe, and feels fortified for the work of the day, whatever it may be.

At noon an ample repast is served on a leather cloth laid on the ground, and the standing dish will be pilau, which consists of a mound of beautifully cooked rice mixed with chopped meat and vegetables.

All Persians sit on their heels, and they eat with their fingers, manipulating the pilau most cleverly with the right hand, it being a mark of ill-breeding to use both hands when eating.

The meal is eaten in total silence, and when all the greasy right hands have been washed with rose water, the party betake themselves to slumber.

Tea, fruit and sweets are partaken of during the visits which Persians are so fond of making, and often the evening meal is not served until nine o'clock, all going to rest immediately after having finished eating.

According to the Mohammedan religion, Persians are not permitted to indulge in alcohol and the strict observance of themselves to abstain (fruit slippers). But the wives of Shahr, Hamdan and Mahan, or attack, the spirit made from grape refuse, prove too strong a temptation to many, and unfortunately the Persian only drinks in order that he may become intoxicated.

Professional Dry Ranks Are Split

Over The Sharp Attack Upon President Coolidge—M. E. Board of Temperance, Flying Squadron and Good Templars Desert Conclave.

Washington, Dec. 4.—A steadily widening split in the ranks of professional prohibitionists over the sharp attack upon President Coolidge for his dry enforcement policies was evident here today.

Three organizations sheered off from the "united committee for prohibition enforcement," and disavowed responsibility for or approval of the sensational report published by Clinton N. Howard of Rochester, in which he accused Mr. Coolidge of personal responsibility for failure to enforce prohibition, and demanded the removal of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon. There were reports today of more to follow.

Dr. Clarence True Wilson, head of the Methodist Episcopal Board of Prohibition, Temperance and Public Morals, sent a letter to President Coolidge denying his organization had subscribed to the report. Oliver W. Stewart, of Indianapolis, head of the "Flying Squadron," and Edwin C. Dinwiddie, head of the International Good Templars, also deserted the dry conclave.

"They all approved it when it was read behind closed doors," asserted Howard today, "but the trouble is they are afraid to say in public what they think in private."

General Lincoln C. Andrews said he would let the big raid just completed in New York stand as his answer to accusations that the prohibition unit is not endeavoring to enforce the law.

Remains of Great Antiquity Found on Mariana Islands

Discover Traces of Vanished Civilization in Pacific Comparable to That of Ancient Mainland.

New Haven, Conn.—Scientists of the Bishop Museum of Honolulu, which is affiliated with Yale university, have discovered ruins of great antiquity on the Mariana Islands, between Hawaii and the Philippines, which indicate a vanished civilization in the Pacific comparable to that of the ancient mainland, according to Prof. Herbert E. Gregory of the Yale geology department and director of the Bishop Museum, who has just returned from Honolulu.

These ruins are so old that the Chamorro, who have inhabited the islands for upwards of a thousand years, know nothing of them. There are hundreds of tall, gracefully shaped stone columns bearing carved caps, each weighing nearly a ton, and arranged in long colonades and circles. The purpose of the great edifices of which these were a part is so far unknown, nor has it been possible as yet to determine the date of their construction or the race of their builders. A study of the skeletons buried at the base of the columns seems to suggest that people related to the Ainus of northern Japan and to some of the earliest Polynesians were the first inhabitants.

The origin and migration of the little-known race inhabiting the Pacific island is one of the outstanding problems of present-day science. Professor Gregory said, "By some routes in the distant past primitive peoples in crude canoes left the Asiatic continent, and making their way from island to island, spread an area 8,000 miles long and 6,000 miles wide, reaching even to New Zealand."

"To trace these routes and to find out who these early people were is a problem which the Bishop Museum and Yale university are attempting to solve. It was in investigating a probable route from Mongolia through Japan to the Marianas and thence to Samoa and Hawaii that these extraordinarily important ruins were discovered. They will have the greatest significance in determining who the earliest inhabitants of this region were and what stage of culture they had achieved."

Too Ambitious

Canaries From Home Habitat Vie for Prizes

New York.—The wild canary is due for its debut before the footlights in New York.

A company of these genuine Canary Islanders is coming here to star in the bird chorus managed by the International Roller Canary Breeders' association at their show, December 14-19.

Bird fanciers from all parts of the United States will bring their domesticated songsters to match the tremendous trill of their blue-blooded ancestors. The New York Canary club announces that more than 5,000 canaries will be in competition for prizes.

The wild canary is not more than five and one-half inches in length. Some of its domestic relations measure eight inches. Most of the varieties, of which twenty-seven were recognized as early as the eighteenth century by French fanciers, differ merely in color and markings of the plumage.

The natural song of the canary is light and clear, and in their native groves, especially during mating season, the birds sometimes sing with such ardor that they burst the delicate vessels of the throat.

One of the most valued varieties has at first black wing and tail feathers, a peculiarity which disappears after the first molting. The less desirable are those on which the plumage is irregularly spotted and speckled.

A native of the Canary Islands and Madeira, the canary was first domesticated in Italy in the sixteenth century. It soon spread over Europe and later to America.

Princeton Students Earn $255,575 Working Way

New York.—The 530 men who are working their way in part or entirely through Princeton university earned last year a total of $255,574.33. These men constitute approximately one-fourth of the student body, and the financial remuneration was obtained in a diversity of ways, varying from scholarship winners to lip-readers and majordomos at club and private dances.

In announcing the above facts, Norvell B. Samuels, director of the bureau of student employment, cited an editorial in the Daily Princetonian, which said:

"When nearly 25 per cent of the Princeton undergraduate body is self-supporting, either wholly or partially, it argues a healthy attitude of mind toward work of all sorts done by men to earn a part of their college expenses."

"The preservation of an entirely democratic atmosphere is of the utmost importance in a community the size of Princeton."

College Offers Xmas Programs

Public Can Get Help In Working Out Holiday Plans, Tablennax, and Games for Parties.

Christmas celebrations present a problem in many communities, and the state college of agriculture at Ithaca has a leaflet of suggestions for the use of anyone who will write for it.

A complete program for a church service or other similar public gathering is given, with three tableaux and directions for staging them. Hymns, Bible readings and carols are listed, and all are designed to carry out the central thought of the real spirit of Christmas.

The tableaux are simple and easily planned. The effects depend somewhat on lighting, but they are so planned that almost any kind of lights can be used. Costumes are called for which can easily be made at home, and the whole production can be staged with a minimum of effort.

Other ideas are given in the same leaflet for a lighter affair to be held in schools. Games are listed which are particularly applicable to the holiday season, and suggestions are made for kind times at parties.

Complete lines and directions for staging a playlet are also included. The playlet has to do with the birth of the Christ-child, and shows the adoration of the child by the shepherds on the hills around Bethlehem. Eight characters are called for, and it takes about fifteen minutes to run through. Requests for this leaflet may be addressed to the mailing room of the state college of agriculture at Ithaca, N. Y.

NEW LAMP BURNS 94% AIR

BEATS ELECTRIC OR GAS

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U. S. Government and 55 leading universities and found to be superior to 107 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise—no pumping up; is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94 per cent air and six per cent common kerosene (coal oil).

The inventor, R. V. Johnson, 642 N. Broad Street, Philadelphia, is offering to send a lamp on 10 days' FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him today for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without expense or money make $250 to $500 per month.

No Socialists in Luther Cabinet

Berlin, Dec. 4.—There will be no Socialists in the new cabinet which Chancellor Luther will be requested to organize on Saturday when the present government resigns in fulfillment of promises made to the Reichstag, it was learned authoritatively here today.

The new cabinet, it is expected, will be based on a "small coalition" made up of representatives of the Centerists and the German People's party.

Efforts to reestablish a grand or Weimar coalition including the Socialists, failed owing to the discrepancies between the conservative viewpoint of the German People's party, representing the great industrialists, and the Socialist economic doctrines.

There is practically no doubt expressed here but that Luther will be charged with forming a new government following his resignation upon his return from London. His most difficult task will be the procuring of sufficient parliamentary support.

The full in the political battle caused by the adjournment of the Reichstag until next Wednesday has given party leaders ample time in which to discuss the possibilities of a new coalition.

It is virtually certain that Foreign Minister Stresemann will retain his post in as much as the Locarno policy which he sanctioned was approved by a large majority. Minister of Defense Gessler, it is understood, will refuse office owing to the repeated charges made by members of his own party that he has acted too leniently in dealing with monarchist organizations.

Meantime the nationalist press has adopted a milder tone in its discussions of the Luther government. This is interpreted as indicating an unwillingness of the Nationalists to destroy the last bridge over which they might enter the cabinet in the future.

Missiles for Cannon

In the Middle Ages various missiles were shot from cannon. Bolts are mentioned in 1413, and in 1418 Henry V ordered his clerk of the ordinance to get 7,000 stone shot made at the quarries at Maidstone. Since then chain, grape, and canister have been invented, as well as shells.

SCHOOL DAYS

WHO SAID

"A falling drop at last will carve a stone."

WHEN Titus Lucretius Carus uttered these words, he expressed a wealth of philosophy and displayed a discernment of vision that today makes his name remembered. Though his death occurred before the birth of Christ, a time when superstition and ignorance were on all sides apparent, this man seems to have had the vision to see that ultimately the tiny germs of truth and science would triumph and, like the falling drop at last, carve the stone, so the truth would carve its shining pathway through the blackness of ignorance.

Lucretius is the name by which this famous Latin philosopher and writer is known. His birth is supposed to have occurred about 98 B. C., and he died in the year 55 B. C. Little is recorded of his life, but a fairly authentic rumor has it that he died a suicide to escape the persecution of the authorities.

The works of Lucretius are best known for their descriptive beauty and elevated sentiment. He was one of those old Roman philosophers whose teachings much resemble in their gentleness and goodness, the religion that Jesus Christ taught.

Lucretius is well known as a believer in the general application of the teachings of the renowned Greek sage, Epicure. This ancient teacher followed a personal philosophy that one should be temperate in all things and should cut from the diversions and pleasures about him only those which were of the best and highest. Epicure died after a long and painful illness which he bore with the greatest fortitude. Lucretius taught a cosmic or universal application of these principles, whereas Epicure was concerned only with their personal application.—Wayne D. McMurray.

YOUR

IS IT JEWELL?

IT IS usually agreed that this name, Jewell, has no connection whatever with Jewel, but that it is derived from the first name Jules or Julius—a Roman name of great antiquity that was used more frequently as a baptismal name a few centuries ago than it is today.

The first of the name in this country was Thomas Jewell, who was born in England, about 1600. He was granted land in Wollaston, Mass., and had settled at Mount Miller, Doston, by 1630.

The Jewells took their share of responsibilities in the early colony, and most of them followed the trade of tanner.

A direct descendant of this Thomas Jewell was Marshall Jewell of Hartford, Conn., born in 1825, who was governor of Connecticut, postmaster general of the United States and United States minister to Russia.

In the American Jewell family the names Pilay, Asahel and Archibald occur frequently.

This name is sometimes spelled Jewel and in England there was a John Jewel, born in 1522, who was bishop of Salisbury and a leader of English Protestants.

Burgess—in old England a burgess was a freeman of a corporate town or borough. A man holding this office took his official title for his surname.

Intman—This means tanner or tannery. Some authorities say that the Intman was really the caretaker for the inn or town house of a tavern.

Remington—This name comes from Remington, a town in Yorkshire, which gave rise to the surname Remington.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

WE NEED MORE THINKERS

THROWN with others, the young man or young woman very soon finds that he or she is affected in various ways by their actions.

It is in this association, this daily encounter with various minds, wits and ideas that we gain experience of the effect of good and bad actions which go toward the development of a good or bad character. "Right" and "wrong" acquire a somewhat different significance in each individual mind, but fundamentally the underlying principle is the same.

In a little while, through this association there is developed an intelligent being who begins to think and reason for himself or herself, who steps boldly out from the masses and approves or condemns in his or her own way.

In this manner every human in the world began the formation of character, building it up piece by piece pretty much as a mason erects a brick wall, until it becomes a formidable structure against which the storms of the years beat until the last grain of life drops down into the unfathomable sea of the beyond.

In this way the feeling of attachment to a duty, or the disregard of obligation becomes stronger and more tenacious with the passing years.

In each of us the finer moral distinctions are recognized, the real nature of right and wrong is intelligently comprehended, yet it often happens that we move on doubtfully and shape our course until the end, not so much in accordance with our acquired knowledge as in harmony with the impressions received in early life.

We become so deeply engrossed in our routine task of "making a living and getting on in the world," that in the vitally important affairs which have to do with our future, we fail to think for ourselves, and fall into the habit of following blind leaders.

This brings us to the thought that the world needs more thinkers who will ask the "reason why" and make an effort to find it out for themselves, the inspiring to greater endeavor for good the struggling, disgruntled armies of mankind still groping in the dark, complaining of their inability to find the way, or approaching anywhere near the realization of their youthful dreams.

Stars Get Start
In the Villages

New York, Dec. 4.—Much has been written from time to time about the country hamlet that sends its boy to the big city to become famous. This, of course, is neither fancy nor fiction; it is fact. Genius, whether it be artistic or athletic, seems only to breed where the spaces begin.

Look over a list of your star ball players. Most of them hail from towns that appear on the map merely as an act of courtesy. What, then, of your managerial tacticians, those master minds of the diamond who think deep thoughts and all that sort of rot?

One of the smartest men in baseball, by popular admission, is Connie Mack. Cornelius comes from Brookfield, Mass., which is not believed to be exactly a great metropolis.

McGraw From Truxton.

Another is John J. McGraw. He was born in Truxton, N. Y. The writer can state, without fear of contradiction, that this town is not as large as London. It is not as large as one of New York's neighborhoods.

Wilbert Robinson also can be put down as a smart baseball man. He claims Hudson, Mass., as his native birthplace, whatever that is. Hughie Jennings pleads guilty to Avoca, Pa., as his home town, while Tris Speaker and Rogers Hornsby come from tiny hamlets in Texas. But what of Bill McKechnie and Stanley Harris, late strategists of the late world series? Bill is understood to abide in Wilkesburg, Pa. Stanley also is from a small Pennsylvania mining town, the name of which escapes the writer at the moment.

Oh, my, yes. We're smart fellows in the big cities.

Lutherans Plan to Preach in Streets

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 4.—Departing from the custom of centuries, Lutheran Churches of this city have laid permanent plans for systematic street preaching during the Sesquicentennial of American Independence which will be celebrated here during 1926. The president of the Philadelphia Conference of the Pennsylvania Ministerium, the Rev. Frank S. Kuntz, announced that membership in churches in Philadelphia connected with the United Lutheran Church in America has increased more than 10 per cent during the current year. Sunday school members have increased more than 1,000. Eight new congregations, 6 additional pastors and 3 new church buildings have been added during 1925.

Elks' Memorial Services Sunday

The public is invited to attend the memorial services which will be held at the Elks' Club Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The orator will be the Rev. Francis M. O'Reilly of St. Peter's Church, Rosendale, and the musical portion of the program will be in charge of the Mendelssohn Club. The Rev. William J. Nelson of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer will preside as chaplain.

Memorial services are held each year by the Elks in memory of those of the order who have died during the year. The program for the services Sunday are as follows:

Invocation—Rev. William J. Nelson
"The Autumn Sea"—Garlick
Mendelssohn Club
Opening Ode—The Lodge and Friends
"Songs My Mother Taught Me"—Dvorak-Smith
Mendelssohn Club
Eulogy—Rev. Francis M. O'Reilly
"The Long Day Closes"—A. Sullivan
Mendelssohn Club
"Star Spangled Banner"—The Lodge and Friends
Benediction—Rev. William J. Nelson
Members of Kingston Lodge who have died since the last memorial services are: Alex Eberts, George F. Wilkowi, Otto Schemmel, Michael J. Fanning, Charles Reynolds, William T. Moakley, William Marx, William Dugan, R. W. Renner, George Barnard, George F. Holmes, Harold F. Meinhardt, Leo V. Grosz and John W. Lawless.

Heavy Damage as Result of Gale

New York, Dec. 4.—Scores of small craft were adrift along the coasts of New York and New Jersey today as the result of a gale which at times attained a velocity of 65 miles an hour.

The gale, however, had blown itself out early today and the lashing rain that had accompanied it died down to a drizzle. Earlier in the week the gale had caused heavy damage along the southern part of the Atlantic seaboard.

Seawalls of many New Jersey resorts were damaged by the storm. On Long Island Sound the steamers of the Colonial and Providence lines were compelled to seek safety in the harbors of Providence, R. I., and New London, Conn.

New York city was swept by a gale and accompanying rain most of the night.

South American Gold in Solomon's Temple?

Ophir, land of rich gold mines that supplied metal for the decorations of King Solomon's temple, was in South America, according to Dr. Van Hanch of Vienna who has been exploring the forests of Peru. The fabled country has been the subject of speculation for years, and has been variously located in Arabia, India or South Africa. Says a writer in Popular Mechanics Magazine. In support of his theory the Vienna explorer declares that he found an Indian tribe of 300 whose features bore a Jewish cast and whose language contained many words like those of the ancient Hebrew. The name Solomon had been given to a number of men in the tribe, and legends were told him of a race of seafaring men who landed on the banks of the river Huallaga and carried away quantities of gold ore. They called the region around the river Ophir. Dr. Van Hanch believes that the strangers may have been King Solomon's sailors, and that the three years' absence of his fleet mentioned in Biblical accounts is explained by the long journey to Peru. Columbus believed that he had found the source of Solomon's riches when he set foot on the West Indies. The African theory is based on the discovery of ancient mines among ruins south of the Zambezi river, and a Seventeenth century writing to the effect that one was the Abyssinian mine from which the queen of Sheba obtained most of the gold she gave King Solomon.

Masterpieces Lost to World Through Flames

The world is very much poorer today because so much classical literature of the early centuries has been lost.

Aeschylus is said to have written from 70 to 90 dramas, but only seven, in a complete state, have been handed down to us. Only seven, too, of the 120 tragedies written by Sophocles are known, with, perhaps, 100 fragments of the others. Of the dramatic works of Euripides, which are said to have totaled 92, only 17 tragedies and a play, dealing with satyrs, also a few fragments of the other compositions, now remain. These losses, also of Greek lyrical works, are due to the destruction by fire of the two great libraries of Alexandria in 47 B. C. when the city was besieged by Julius Caesar. In this fire 700,000 volumes were destroyed.

Coffee's "Discovery"

There are many stories as to who first discovered the food value of coffee. In Europe this important discovery is usually accredited to the inmates of an old monastery in Arabia who had observed that their goats after browsing upon the coffee berries were decidedly lively. They decided to taste the berries to see if they, too, would be similarly affected. First they chewed the berries but were disappointed in the taste. Then they boiled them but without success. Then they tried roasting them and found this gave a delightful flavor. Later a monk brewed a stimulating drink by pounding the roasted berries in a mortar.

Sugar From Dahlias

A new dahlia and artichoke industry promises new life for domestic sugar manufacturers, according to Science. At present huge beet-sugar plants are lying idle two-thirds of the year for lack of raw material. It is now expected that after producing beet sugar in the summer the plants will run four months on artichoke, followed by four months on dahlia tubers to produce large quantities of the new levulose sugar. At present levulose is prepared only as a sirup or moist, powder-like brown sugar, but the problems of crystallization are rapidly being solved commercially.

Modesty

The parents had been trying for some time to impress a sense of modesty on four-year-old Betty. The following incident caused them to feel that their efforts had not been wholly in vain.

Betty was seated on the floor, playing with "dresses up" paper dolls, when her grownup cousin breezed in. She started toward the child and was prepared to exclaim over the dolls, when she was halted by a frown of disapproval. "Don't look," scolded the youngster. "Can't you see they're dressing?"

In Airtight Bags

Observations were made at the National Academy of Sciences in Washington recently on five subjects (three men and two women) placed in an airtight bag through which a stream of heated, dry air (about 85 degrees centigrade) was passed. Loss of weight was five to thirteen times greater than normal, oxygen consumption increased slightly, while skin temperature was fairly uniform and only one degree or so above normal, owing to the cooling effect of perspiration.

Brain Valuable Food

Brain, the dark, fibrous portion of wheat, is less completely digested than the rest of the kernel. As brain is sold commercially it has some food value from the starch as well as from the minerals and vitamins associated with the fibrous parts, but it is used chiefly for its laxative properties. In moderate quantities, and especially as it comes ground up in Graham flour, it is usually considered to be a desirable addition to the diet.

Early Clocks

The first clock which shows any relation to our modern idea of clocks is said to have been made in England about 1280 by a monk named Peter of Lincoln. Up to 1380 the use of clocks was confined chiefly to cathedrals and large buildings.

A week at sea in a disabled open boat, Vito Lochuco and Frank Ventimiglia, of Boston, were rescued starving and half crazed. In their delirium they burned $3,500 in bills in an effort to keep warm.

Still Seeking Grave of Ancient Warrior

A new search is being made for the grave of Attila the Hun.

History records that during the middle of the Fifth century Attila led his ruthless hordes westward from Asia and over-ran the greater part of Europe, his career of conquest carrying him almost to the Atlantic ocean.

According to tradition Attila was buried on top of a high mountain somewhere in the basin of the Danube. Numerous legends describe his burial, the most striking point of which was the encasement of his body in three metal coffins. The outer coffin was made of iron, the middle one of silver, and the inner one of gold.

By common consent among the historians it has long been conceded that his grave was somewhere on a Hungarian mountain near the river Tisza. For more than a thousand years this mountain has borne his name. No absolute proof of his burial here has ever been discovered, however, and now the claim is being disputed.

In Steiermark, one of the nine states which compose the Austrian republic, excavators have discovered a number of weapons and other implements which date from the Fifth and Sixth centuries.

These discoveries were made on a mountain named "Huehnerberg." In ancient manuscripts this mountain was referred to as "Hunnenberg," or Hunus mountain. Steiermarkians claim that the discovery of the ancient weapons as well as the name of the mountain itself indicate that Attila and his chief were buried somewhere in the vicinity.

Hopefully and with great care they are now busy making further excavations at every point on the mountain where it is possible that Attila the Hun may lie resting in his triple coffin.

Wild Sheep

Ovis Pol is the great wild sheep of Marco Polo, the "father and mother" of all the wild sheep. He represents the elder branch of the family of which our big-horn is a member, and, weighing 300 pounds, he makes our big-horn look, in comparison, a small animal. He lives in the barren, treeless Pamirs. He was originally discovered about 1256 by Marco Polo, hence the name.

For a long time this was considered a romance, for anyone was willing to prove that no such animal could exist. It was allotted a place with the unicorn and the phoenix. At last, some six hundred years later, Lieut. John Wood, an English officer, made his way into the country, shot a sheep and proved that Marco Polo—at least in this instance—was speaking the truth. —Theodore Roosevelt, in Hearst's International Cosmopolitan.

Fortune to Music

Philadelphia.—Theodore Presser, music publisher and founder, owner and for years editor of Etude, who died at his home here October 25, left virtually all of his $2,000,000 estate to a fund he had established several years ago to aid the cause of musical education and to assist struggling musicians.

Hot Texas Leads Nation in Ice-Making Plants

Philadelphia.—Texas ranks first among the states of the Union in number of ice manufacturing plants and first in the number of persons engaged therein. The industry has an aggregate investment, based on replacement cost of approximately $33,500,000, according to a survey and report of the industry, recently completed by Burt C. Blanton, consulting industrial engineer.

"The ice industry in Texas today ranks fourth in capital investment among five major classes of manufacturers," Mr. Blanton said, "which are petroleum refining, power and light, textiles, ice and refrigeration and cottonseed oil mills."

"The maximum capacity of Texas' ice plants amounts to approximately 15,000 tons of ice a day."

"The average annual ice production in Texas now approximates 2,215,000 tons, which, based on the average prevailing price of ice, is valued at approximately $12,500,000."

"Texas ranks fifth among the states of the Union in the quantity of ice manufactured. New York ranks first, Illinois second, Pennsylvania third and California fourth."

"The ice industry ranks ninth in point of investment among the industries of the United States," Mr. Blanton said.

Cordts Hose Company Officers

The annual meeting of John N. Cordts Hose Company, No. 8, was held Thursday evening and the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

Walter N. Gill, president; Lamar Crawford, honorary president; Martin J. Schleede, foreman; Harry Lowe, first assistant foreman; Joseph Emmerick, Jr., second assistant foreman; Eugene D. Carey, secretary; Ralph Terwilliger, treasurer; Charles Lahl, Jr., representative to Kingston Fire Fund Association; the Rev. F. W. Moot, chaplain; Lorenzo Ostrander, janitor; John Rockefeller, steward; Joseph Emmerick, Sr., delegate to Hudson Valley Volunteer Firemen's Convention.

After the meeting a luncheon and smoker were enjoyed.

The company is in a very prosperous condition, having $1,000 on deposit in the Rondout Savings Bank and the Rondout National Bank. The company at present has 97 members on its roll.

CORDTS HOSE CARD PARTY MONDAY EVENING

The fourth card party of the series arranged by the Ladies' Auxiliary of John N. Cordts Hose Company, No. 8, will be held in the company's parlors on Delaware avenue, on Monday evening. Games will commence at 8:15 o'clock. Pinocle will be played at all tables.

The past three parties held by the ladies of the company were successful, both socially and financially, and it is expected that this affair will exceed all the others. The public is invited. Refreshments will be served after the games. These games are taking the place of the annual fair and bazaar of the company.

The company expects to attend the convention of the Hudson Valley Volunteer Firemen's Association to be held in Port Jervis in 1926 and the proceeds of the parties are expected to outfit the members in new uniforms.

Tourists Enrich Canada

Tourists from the United States took $150,000,000 in revenue to Canada in 1925, according to estimates of Canadian government officials. This sum is equal to a quarter of the value of the Dominion's wheat crop and approximately the value of the annual mining output of Ontario, Quebec and British Columbia combined. More than 2,000,000 American automobiles, it is estimated, have crossed into Canada this fall. They carried approximately 2,000,000 people, or a number equal to the total population of Canada.

The Stampede

"One of them there devilish airplanes came over my place yesterday," related Gus Johnson of Rumpus Ridge. "Just as it was right up above us it got down and then turned a complete somersault. But before it had flipped over my children saw a united yell, stamped for the tall timber and never stopped till they got into the cave over above on timber side of Mount Flagg. They didn't all get home yet, but they keep dropping in a few at a time."—Kansas City Star.

Gala Day for Maine's Fiddler

When He Leaves For Dearborn To Play For Henry Ford—'Mellie' Is Also An Expert Snow Shoe Maker And Took Part In North Pole Discovery.

Norway, Maine, Dec. 4.—When Henry Ford invited A. M. (Mellie) Dunham, Maine's champion 72 year old fiddler, to go to Dearborn, Michigan, and play for him, the automobile manufacturer started something for 'Mellie'.

Telegrams, telephone calls and a huge stack of mail deluge 'Mellie's' little farmhouse day and night. Postal officials said today that Mellie's mail is larger than the governor's. The messages contain all sorts of proposals, from arrangements for his trip to offers to go on the stage.

Norway and South Paris, two bustling Maine towns, are going to give 'Mellie' and his wife the biggest send off ever on Monday morning. Schools and stores in both towns will be closed. There will be a parade and ceremonies at the local railway station. Governor Ralph O. Brewster, and staff have accepted an invitation to be present.

Mr. and Mrs. Dunham have never been out of the state but once in their long span of years and that time was for a day's trip to Boston. They will travel to Detroit in a private car by way of Montreal.

Incidentally, it became known today for the first time that the obscure little white haired Maine farmer played a very important part in the discovery of the North Pole by Explorer Peary. 'Mellie' is an expert snow shoe maker and it was on snowshoes made by the fiddler that Peary trudged north. Lieutenant Commander MacMillan, another Arctic explorer and native of Maine, always takes a pair of 'Mellie's' snow shoes north with him. The fame of 'Mellie' has spread beyond the United States border and the Canadian Snowshoe Club will give the Maine man and his wife a big time in Montreal.

'Mellie' who lives in this town where Hannibal Hamlin, vice-president under Lincoln, was born and which has given more men of national note to the country than any other town in the United States, is somewhat bewildered by the fame thrust upon him.

"I always thought," said 'Mellie' today, "I always thought I could make as good snowshoes as any one else. But I never thought I would take my place in Maine's musical world with such noted artists as Nordica and Emma Eames."

Mr. Ford heard of Dunham's prowess on the fiddle when 'Mellie' won the Maine State championship at Lewiston.

'Mellie' will take some snow shoes along with his fiddle when he leaves for Michigan on Monday.

SCIENTIST HAS NEW THEORY OF MANKIND

Believes Europe Cradle Land of Race.

The skull of an ancient Galilean who lived at Capernaum some 20,000 to 30,000 years before miracles began to be performed there, may be taken as evidence that Europe was the cradle land both of man and of his culture. Sir Arthur Keith, famous anthropologist, told the British Association for the Advancement of Science.

The skull of which Sir Arthur spoke, a model of which lay on the table beside him, is that discovered by Francis Turville Petre, of the British School of Archeology, a few months ago in a cave on the northern shore of the Sea of Galilee near the site of the ancient city of Capernaum, where Christ performed many of His earlier miracles.

This discovery, Sir Arthur said, "makes all the Biblically recorded events, which heretofore seemed to mark the very beginning of history, become the happenings of recent days." There was evidence, he said, that this early man was capable of performing a simple surgical operation probably by means of a stone instrument.

"From this discovery," Sir Arthur continued, "we can say that in remote times, as today, the dominant type of mankind spread abroad from a cradle land, carrying their particular methods of life with them until a large area of the world was covered. The balance of the evidence found in this Galilean cave is in favor of Europe being the cradle land of both man and his culture."

The Capernaum skull, the speaker said, belonged to a species of mankind profoundly different in structure from all living races, who was "not our ancestor, but the cousin of our ancestor." It was a mistake, Sir Arthur added, to look upon this man or the Neanderthal man as an ape, for while the features certainly were more ape-like than those of any man living now this man had a brain which in point of size, if not in organization, "reached modern standards at least."

Mr. Turville-Petre's discovery, Sir Arthur said, "will always rank among the most important events of our pre-history."

Sir William Boyd Dawkins, professor of geology and paleontology in Victoria university and another noted anthropologist, told the scientists that they had before them "the skull of a missing link."

Releasing Clutch Will Help Storage Battery

"How many people throw out the clutch before they put their foot on the starting button?" asked a distributor of a big automobile concern in discussing the cure of storage battery troubles the other day.

"Not one in ten, according to my observation," he resumed. "In spite of the instructions furnished by the battery manufacturers and the service stations, few, apparently, appreciate the importance of this little stunt which adds to the life of the battery in their car."

"When the engine has been idle for any length of time in cold weather the grease in the transmission gears stiffens to the consistency of putty almost. This places a tremendous additional load on the engine in starting. 'Everybody knows how much elbow grease is required to turn the handle of an ice-cream freezer after the contents begin to get stiff. An automobile is up against a similar proposition in turning the transmission on a cold day."

"This extra burden pulls the battery down, since it may be necessary to call on the battery four or five times before the engine gets under way without stalling. It is some job to churn a load of cold grease."

"The remedy is so simple and has been stated so often that you would suppose every automobile driver practiced it, but apparently, a majority release the clutch only when shifting gears or applying the brakes."

Ten Hints for Motorist Who Polishes His Auto

In the Motor Coach Work, the official publication of the New York Motor Coach Manufacturers' association, appeared these ten hints for motorists who use polish on automobile bodies:

If you must use polish, do not apply it before the varnish on your car is at least three or four months old, which will by that time be well hardened.

Select a polish that does not leave an oily film after it has been wiped off.

Use it sparingly, and above all do not use any oily polish that is shot out of a squirt-gun.

Do not apply polish on more than one or two panels at a time.

Rub off immediately and pay particular attention to remove all polish out of corners.

Rub in straight strokes (never in a circular motion).

Do not polish car outdoors, especially when exposed to the sun and do not polish the hood when hot.

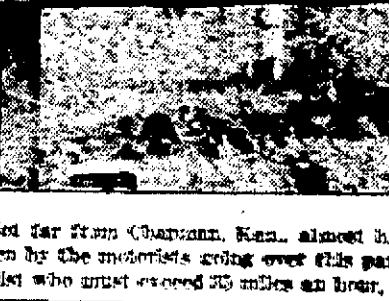

Keep polish off the nickel-plate parts, as it will cause them to rust.

Do not polish car unless all mud and dirt has been removed by water.

Above all, do not polish very often. The less the better.

UNIQUE SIGN WARNS KANSAS MOTORISTS

WARNING
This Road is Patrolled by a Mounted Officer Speed Limit 35 Mi. Per hour
BRIGHT LIGHTS FORBIDDEN
HELP MAKE TRAVEL SAFE
STATE HIGHWAY LAWS ENFORCED

Not far from Charvonn, Kan., almost half way to Abilene, this sign will be seen by the motorists going over this particular stretch of road. "For the motorist who must exceed 35 miles an hour, the cops are lying in wait."

Use FREEMAN advertising regularly and conservatively and results will surely follow.

WHERE YOU MAY CROSS STREET

Motor Club Cites Need of Laws That Establish Responsibility.

Unmeritorious personal injury suits arising out of the use of the automobile, clutter up the courts and cause many motorists a great deal of anxiety, and in numerous cases a financial loss, according to the accident prevention department of the Chicago Motor club. This department of the club is now engaged in an investigation of personal injury cases, and it finds that these injuries which are listed in the records kept by various cities range from real injury such as broken limbs, to the rather vague injuries listed as "shock." In many cases a shock is a real injury while in others it is flimsy in character.

"A person injured very slightly has no trouble in bringing suit," continues the bulletin, "and many suits are started because of the rather widespread, but erroneous opinion, that any injury caused by an automobile is in itself sufficient grounds upon which to base a suit and obtain recovery."

Injustice to Drivers of Cars.

"Motorists who have become involved in an accident are frequently astonished to find suit brought against them, when they know that they have in no way contributed toward the accident. There is nothing in law, however, to prevent anyone from bringing suit, and this has led to the cluttering up of our court calendars and to injustice to the drivers of automobiles."

"When a motorist is sued he must file the proper legal papers in answer to the plaintiff's declaration, and he is forced to defend his case even though he knows the plaintiff is entirely in the wrong."

"The cost of procuring the attendance of his witnesses, lawyers' fees, and the fees of court reporters falls upon the defendant in such a case, and even if he is given a favorable verdict he finds himself considerably out of pocket."

"When the general public begins to realize that an injury is not in itself sufficient grounds for recovery, but that the liability of the driver must be shown, there will be fewer suits of this nature entered in our courts."

Attempts Made to Defraud.

"In some cases, of course, a deliberate attempt is made to defraud the car owner. The injured or supposedly injured persons are willing to gamble that the sympathies of the jury will be with them, and that an adverse verdict will not be found in the higher courts."

"The remedy lies in the enactment of laws that will definitely establish the responsibility of pedestrians. The railroads have a different condition to face than has the car owner. The only concern of the railway is to avoid willful, wanton neglect. The man who ventures upon a railroad right of way is a trespasser, but the motorist in the street has no right of way. Our laws were framed when our population was a pedestrian one, but today with 17,500,000 automobiles in use on our highways a more equitable distribution of responsibility is being demanded."

"This demand does not consider allowing the driver of a motor vehicle to travel at any rate of speed he may see fit to use, but rather it considers establishing certain places where the pedestrian may cross a street and be within his rights, and others where he would be a trespasser. Crossing the street in the middle of the block is the direct cause of numerous accidents, and it should be made an act of trespass. When such laws are enacted there will be fewer unjust suits brought into our courts."

"Ma" Appoints 2 New Members

Appointment of Two New Members of Highway Commission Allays Clamor for Special Session—Satterwhite Says He Will Call Session.

Austin, Texas, Dec. 4.—Interest in the Texas political turmoil today centered in an unexpected statement of the policy to be adopted by the state highway commission, two new members of which were appointed late yesterday by Governor Miriam A. Ferguson.

Chairman S. A. Mosley, of the commission, following a brief executive session, declared there were many matters to be discussed and considered before any formal announcement would be made but indicated that an outline of the commission's program would be forthcoming today.

Meanwhile the atmosphere around the state capitol, where Governor "Ma" Ferguson holds sway, and former Governor James "Pa" Ferguson, her husband, is the guiding genius of seething activities, continues surcharged with rumors and reports regarding a special session of the lower house of the Texas legislature to be called for the purpose of investigating conditions in the state highway department and the connection of state officials with alleged irregularities in the letting of contracts by that department.

No official edict came from the governor's office, but the former governor had not changed early today his attitude that "no decision" has been reached by the governor in regard to calling a special session.

"When it is decided," "Pa" said, "we will announce it officially and to all concerned."

Governor Ferguson, herself is on record as saying she saw no reason for calling the much discussed special session. The sum total of her remarks to newspaper men was: "No questions now; I have much work to do."

That the clamor for a special session on the part of the anti-Ferguson leaders has been allayed by the appointment of Mosley and John Carr to the highway commission was indicated today by a slight lessening of the tension that has pervaded the capitol and environs. Fewer political leaders were seen about the executive chamber and this comment was frequently heard: "Well, I guess 'Ma' can handle the situation all right."

Despite the sentiment that the highway situation has been cleared up by the new appointments, Lee Satterwhite, speaker of the Texas house of representatives, reiterated today that unless Governor Ferguson calls a special session by December 10, he would himself issue a proclamation on December 15, convening that body.

"There are indications," Satterwhite told International News Service, "that the state road fund has been badly mismanaged. I have an opinion from the attorney general's office that incompetency and waste is

Republican Bunk, Says Al Smith Pastor Greenwell Taken to Hospital

In Characterizing Reports That Republican Leaders Were Planning To Abolish State Income Tax—Impossible To Tell, Says Governor.

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 4.—"It's more Republican bunk, bluff and bluster." Was the way Governor Al Smith today characterized reports that Republican leaders of the Legislature were planning to abolish the state income tax.

"The Republican leaders know in their hearts that it is impossible to tell early in December whether it is possible to have any reduction in the state income tax, to say nothing about abolishing it," the governor declared.

Pointing to the fact that he had to send a special message to the 1925 Legislature to get the Republican leaders to agree to a 25 per cent reduction in the income tax, the governor said:

"Why last year when the Republican leaders had a chance to join with me in bringing about a 25 per cent cut in the income tax they had to be driven to pass the necessary legislation because of public opinion."

"Of course, it's an easy thing for them to talk now about abolishing the income tax when they know that no living man can tell at this time how much money will be needed next year for the support of the government."

The governor said the Republican leaders who have been talking about abolishing the income tax must have forgotten that the 1926 Legislature will have to make a $11,000,000 additional appropriation for the support of schools to carry out legislation passed at the 1925 session.

The governor said that this year it was impossible to tell two days before the Legislature convened whether it would be possible to have even a 25 per cent reduction in the income tax.

"When I wrote my message to the 1925 Legislature, I didn't know if it would be possible to cut 25 per cent of the income tax and now some of the Republican leaders are making assertions early in December that the entire tax ought to be abolished," the governor said.

"Remember, it's nothing but Republican bunk," said the governor as he closed the interview.

Coolidge Praises Morrow Report

And Stresses Importance of Aviation As An Arm of the National Defense—Indirect Slap at Colonel Mitchell.

Washington, Dec. 4.—In praising the report of the Morrow air craft board, President Coolidge today stressed the importance of aviation as an arm of the national defense.

"There is no dispute that the science of aviation, now in its infancy, is going to play an important part in safeguarding our country from any foreign attack, and anything which will develop its usefulness should be welcomed by us all," said the president in a formal statement.

The president took what was regarded an indirect slap at Colonel William Mitchell, whose air recommendations were rejected by the board, when he said that the "report gives to the public a clearer understanding of all the problems involved than any statement heretofore issued."

"Contributions to the solution of the problem is of the greatest value," said Mr. Coolidge. "National defense is a matter in which we are all interested quite properly."

The president warmly praised the members of the board, which was headed by Dwight W. Morrow, of Morgan and Company.

Congress will be asked by the president to give careful consideration to the report with a view to incorporating many of its recommendations into legislation this winter.

The war and navy departments already are drafting proposed legislation to carry out the board's recommendations for improving aviation.

Methodists Not For Unification

Northern Methodist Vote Overwhelmingly in Its Favor But Southern Organization Falls Short of Required Vote.

Chicago, Dec. 4.—Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes, resident bishop of the Chicago area of the Methodist Episcopal Church, was interviewed concerning the vote of the Methodist Episcopal Church and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, on the unification of the two churches. Bishop Hughes is a member of the joint commission, Bishop William F. McDowell, formerly of Chicago, now of Washington, D. C., being chairman of the commission of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Bishop Hughes said: "The voting in the conferences of the two churches is practically completed. Unification carries overwhelmingly in the Methodist Episcopal Church, the favoring vote being almost 95 per cent. In the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, the required constitutional majority is three-fourths. The vote falls far short of this, but is evident that the final returns will show a numerical majority of between 300 and 400.

"Personally, I regard this as a great victory, inasmuch as this is the first time since the separation in 1844 that the two churches have reached the state of voting.

"Of course, it would not be delicate for the Methodist Episcopal Church to push matters at this juncture, but our tremendous vote indicates plainly that we are ready to trust fully our southern brethren, and to meet any future propositions in a generous and welcoming spirit."

Dr. R. J. Wade, secretary of the general conference, announced the official vote so far received by him from the annual conferences of the Methodist Episcopal Church as 10,521 ministerial votes in favor and 672 against; the laymen voted 9,910 for and 179 against. This is clearly a constitutional majority in favor of unification. The Methodist Episcopal Church constitution requires a two-thirds majority and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, requires a three-fourths majority.

The College of Bishops will give the official vote of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, on December 11.

West Shokan Man Commits Suicide

Howard R. Sherman, Despondent Over Ill Health Blows Top of His Head Off With a Rifle.

Howard R. Sherman of West Shokan shot himself with a rifle at his home Thursday afternoon, blowing the top of his head off. His wife who was in an adjoining room heard the report of the gun and rushed to the kitchen where she found her husband lying on the floor dead with the rifle at his side.

Mr. Sherman was 33 years old and had been in ill health for some time. He was well known in that section of the country where he had resided for a long time. He built a new stone house half way up the side of South Mountain which was one of the show places of that vicinity. However, he recently moved from that residence to the Bushkill road and it was there that he committed suicide Thursday. He was recently married. Last summer he was quite ill and underwent a serious operation. Since that time his health has been poor and it is thought that his physical condition caused him to become despondent and end his life.

Coroner W. N. Conner was notified and went to the scene where after viewing the remains he gave a verdict of suicide and took possession of the body which he brought to his undertaking parlors on Fair street. The body will be held pending word from Mr. Sherman's mother who is in Bermuda and who was notified by wire of the happening.

Legion Building Nears Completion

The American Legion Memorial building on West O'Reilly street is nearing completion and but for the slow arrival of some hardware the building would be ready for use in a few days. Hardware for the sliding doors between the Legion and Auxiliary rooms has not arrived and the hanging of these doors has been held up. As soon as the hardware is received the doors will be placed in position and the floors completed and finished and the rooms will be ready for use.

At present the stairways are being placed in position and except for a few minor details the contractor has practically completed the job. It was hoped that the annual meeting could be held in the building and plans were made to dedicate the building on December 15 but unforeseen delay in receiving material has held the work up to some extent and delayed completion of the job.

Women May Vote At Holy Cross

There has been filed in the office of the Ulster county clerk a certificate of the changing of the qualifications of voters of Mission Church of the Holy Cross, Kingston. The change allows women of the parish of full age who have been regular attendants at its worship and contributors to its support for at least twelve months prior to any annual election or special meeting of the parish to vote.

Rippling Skirts Favored in Paris

Leading Couturiers Are Offering Rather Extreme Designs.

The couturier who regards his vocation as an art aims to distinguish himself in it. This is especially true of the Parisian creator of fashions whose clientele looks to him for something particularly adapted to an individual style. Although the general trend of the season is taken into account, notes a Paris fashion writer in the New York Times, those couturiers who have attained prestige are known by their own special treatment of costume. Each has an individualized conception of beauty in line, in design, in color and in fabric, and each has a following both in Europe and in America.

Martial et Armand claim the distinction of having introduced the flare, the conspicuous feature of the present mode. To create an entirely new style that reverses the old is in itself a radical step, an adventure, in its way. The fashion public is fickle and gives up old favorites reluctantly, though it clamors for novelty. To present the advanced idea first requires a certain sense of security in the public's opinion, a sureness of touch. The designer proposes, but it is the woman of fashion who disposes. If she accepts the new version, it becomes established. If she does not, its life is short. The straight-line, the chemise, gown and tube skirt exhausted the possibilities in that type of dress. They became commonplace to monotony. The pendulum had to swing the other way, and so it has done. The success of the innovation is illustrated in innumerable ways in costumes of great art and beauty. The coming of the flare has been prophesied from time to time for several seasons. Now and then a slight hint of it appeared in a tiny godet or a slight ripple. The name of a swaggar couturier would carry it a little way and women who wanted it for eccentricity would affect it for a time. But the straight, slim silhouette, beloved of the slender figure, died hard. Last season the coming of the flare was certain. All of the Parisian creators swung to it, but Madame, the directress of this prominent establishment of the Place Vendôme, claims the honor of having shown first the charm of rippling skirts in a whole collection of beautiful gowns for every occasion.

Use of Silk and Velvet. In making good this claim, Martial et Armand are presenting this season some of the most attractive costumes ever conceived in their atelier. These run through the entire list of the requirements of fashion from the simplest frock for morning or all day, to the most pretentious outfit for afternoon or evening. The fabrics range from the richest velvets and silks, and the most splendid brocades, to plain woolsens and leather. None among the Parisian designers has made more delightful and alluring use of silk velvet, the material de luxe, which fashion prophets and manufacturers of dress goods have long urged upon style leaders. Its present popularity is due largely to the manner in which the foremost artists have adapted it. In one particularly chic gown of black velvet, done by Martial et Armand, the special treatment of the flare this house is featuring is shown in a charming manner. The entire scheme of trimming is at the back of the gown. The bodice, which has a round high neck, a flat face collar and long plain sleeves, is drawn long and snug over the hips and caught at each side of the back with two short pieces trimmed with buttons. The bodice and underskirt are one in front, and at the back is added a circular flounce, dipping in the middle almost to the bottom of the skirt and shortened at the sides. This tulle flounce is trimmed with a band of brown dyed squirrel with which the sleeves are finished at the wrist.

In another model of velvets and dignified Martial et Armand apply the flaring flounce in a clever arrangement, plain across the front but swinging full from side to side across the back. This gown, of soft green crepe, forms part of a handsome ensemble, the rest of which, dark green ribbed silk, has a flounce around the bottom. This, too, is plain in front, flaring at the sides and back, where it is finished at the upper edge with an up-curved line. The flounce is divided at the middle of the back, and the band of beaver, which borders the bottom, is continued up the overlapping side, narrowing toward the top. The sleeves of this exceptionally smart wrap are plain and narrow with wide cuffs of beaver, and the high enveloping collar is also of beaver.

For the more elaborate daytime gowns, wraps and ensembles, these couturiers are using all the new rich autumn colors in velvet and the Blanchini fabrics. The green, blues, burgundy and bronze are especially lovely. Far is seen on many of these, mostly soft close furs, such as beaver, squirrel, natural seal, and innumerable dyed furs. Fox is the one favorite among the longer furs, and Russian sable holds its own as ever before.

Elegance and Grace.

The Martial et Armand evening models are achievements in elegance and grace. In these, also, the materials are drawn from the widest range, from the most delicate filmy clouds of tulle, georgette and chiffon to the glittering lame cloths and metallic brocades. In these the fullness in drapery is all at the back. In several beautiful gowns this fullness is created by gathering the material across the back, and by hanging it almost, if not quite, plain across the front. This is done with success in a splendid dinner gown of gold lame. The bodice is plain, following snugly the lines of the figure. A wide, soft girde of the lame, richly embroidered in jewels, is swathed about the hips in lines that cross in an original arrangement, with two short plaited ends. The width of lame gathered across the back has the uneven lower edge, now so fashionable, dropping almost to the floor at one side. In the softer materials drapery that depends from the shoulder in scarf or Jabot effect is shown. An unusually graceful model of delicate green crepe chiffon has a deep flounce of the material, dotted with gold and silver beads, attached to the back of its long, slim bodice. The crepe falls in a deep cascade, caught in a cluster of plaits on each shoulder, and folded in a point several inches below the hem of the gown. This has the appearance of a slender cape in voluminous folds. The low V decollete neck is outlined with a band of gold and silver embroidery, which is used also to finish the top of the flounce across the front of the dress.

Jeune Fille Models.

Some engaging jeune fille models are presented in original designs. The latest materials show the autumn wood colors, warm reds and greens shaded from dark ivy and myrtle to bronze green, with a glint of gold, revived from the color fashions of long ago. Navy blue and the duller shades are passe this season, and royal blue is popular. Black is used for many youthful frocks and suits, also much scarlet, often in combination with black. The materials include the new reps, both in the fine and the heavier lines, diagonals, mixtures, velvets and plaids, to some extent, though less than heretofore.

Fullness that gives freedom at the bottom of the skirt is the point illustrated in almost all of the new models. It is done with a circular, bias or plaited use of the material. Still, there are many clever styles in which the skirt cut straight or with slightly flaring lines is shown. Some of the most chic among the latest designs for young women of slender figure are built in this manner. In the new boleros suit, a straight skirt is particularly suitable. It is shown also in some attractive frocks in which there is at least a suggestion of the bolero.

Has Collection of Kilt

Frederick Henry, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., is making a collection of kilts. He has been traveling all over Scotland in the hope of getting a specimen of kilt and tartan of every Scottish clan. One in his collection is a kilt made for and worn by the late Sir Edward. It was brought from a tartan in the north-west of Scotland.

"Wear-Ever" Aluminum Griddle and Steak Broiler

Four years ago we sold over a million sample "Wear-Ever" Fry Pans at a special price to convince users that any difficulties that had occurred were caused by improper heat regulation. Subsequent increase in sales of all "Wear-Ever" Fry Pans has proved that a pan in use is our best advertisement.

Everybody enjoys griddle cakes—piping hot, nut brown, delicious—the ideal breakfast for snappy autumn and winter mornings. Yet in many homes griddle cakes are not served because of the smoke which comes from ordinary griddles. Such homes will welcome this "greaseless griddle." Be sure to get your "Wear-Ever" Griddle today! Stores have but limited stocks, and they are selling fast.

To Get Best Results from "Wear-Ever" Griddle

- (1) Heat the griddle. Place a bit of butter near outer edge.
- (2) When it browns, turn down flame about one-half.
- (3) Griddle will remain sufficiently hot to bake cakes a golden brown. The same instructions regarding "Wear-Ever" griddle. See fact!

Be sure to see it today! New! "Wear-Ever" Six Cup Percolator

Actually holds eight average size cups. Note particularly its attractive design, its welded spout and the metal at the bottom of its imitation ebony handle which affords complete protection from the flame. Brings out the full delightful coffee aroma and provides a liquid of remarkable clearness and purity. Price $2.75

Use Your Favorite Pancake Flour or the Following Recipe:

3 cups flour 2 eggs
3 teaspoons baking powder 2 cups milk or water (scant)
1 teaspoon salt 1 tablespoon sugar
1 tablespoon butter or shortening

Sift flour, mix baking powder and water together. Beat eggs and milk together, add melted butter. Gradually stir liquid into dry ingredients, making smooth batter. Heat griddle. (Some women place bit of butter near outer edge. When butter browns, griddle is hot enough to bake cakes.) Turn down flame about one-half. Four cakes on hot griddle. When cakes are full of bubbles, turn and brown other side.

Supreme Court Convenes Monday

December Term of Supreme Court Convenes Monday With Calendar of 32 Causes of Which Four are Preferred.

The December term of the supreme court will be convened at the court house Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock with Judge Ellis J. Staley presiding. A grand and trial jury will be in attendance.

There are 321 cases on the calendar for the term of which four are preferred causes.

One of the preferred causes is an action brought by Nicholas Schwartz as administrator, etc., of Alexander Schwartz against Frank and Alice Flisager to recover damages for the death of Alexander Schwartz who was killed when he was struck by an automobile driven by Frank Flisager. The child in company with several other persons had crossed the Rondout Creek Bridge and at the Fort Eden end of the bridge the child was struck by the Flisager car and carried some distance up the road before he dropped from the car. The child died as a result of the injuries. An inquest was conducted before Coroner Conner following the accident and Flisager was found not guilty of criminal negligence in the matter and released. Flisager claimed the car ran out in front of his machine and that he did not know he had struck him until one of the passengers looked back and saw the lad's body drop from the car to the road. Frank W. Brooks is attorney for plaintiff and Benjamin C. Loder for the defendant.

Pruning Work in Ulster County

The Farm Bureau has been co-operating with the pomology department at the State College of Agriculture in holding pruning demonstrations in the county for several years. The pruning work among the fruit growers of the county has been and is today a very important factor. Three of the five year demonstrations carried on by the Farm Bureau were completed last December.

Prof. G. W. Peck, who is in charge of this demonstration work, will be in the county next week to conduct these meetings. The first two demonstrations will be held on Tuesday, December 8, at the following places:

Flatbush, orchard of W. P. Kieffer, 9:30 a. m.
Ulster Park, orchard of John Herdick, 1:30 p. m.
Fruit growers in the vicinity of Flatbush and Ulster Park should avail themselves of this opportunity and attend one of the demonstration meetings.

Test for Textures

The oil test used to determine whether material is linen or cotton consists of immersing a fringed sample, with dressing removed, in olive oil or glycerine. After squeezing out excess oil, if linen, the sample becomes transparent, while cotton remains opaque.

Storms Balk Rum Runners

Tampa, Fla., Dec. 4.—Father Neptune may yet dethrone bootlegging Santa Claus in Florida.
For the old man of the sea likes nothing but salt water himself, and cares little for the likes of others.
So severe and inhospitable has he been with those who brave his watery dominions carrying cargoes of Christmas "cheer," that the quenching of Yuletide yearnings may have to be accomplished by Volsteadian extracts.
Prohibition officials throughout Florida have confidently predicted that Father Neptune and nature have combined against rum-runners and smuggling of holiday hooch is at a standstill off both the east and west coasts.

Seas Halt Traffic.
Commander Philip W. Hambach, returning from a tour of inspection of the state, declared that high seas and rough weather was proving the nemesis of the liquor traffic throughout the northwestern section.
Heavy seas and shallow passages are known to have prevented the usual amount of whisky smuggling activity in the region of Tampa Bay, and Harry F. Lukett, head of the prohibition office in Miami, said that rum-running from offshore islands, where the holiday supply is stored, has practically ceased because of adverse weather.

"The smaller boats cannot weather the heavy seas," he said, "and the larger boats are unable to clear the narrow passages surrounding the islands."
Increased activities on land by Federal forces will also tend to curtail the holiday supply of Christmas cheer, Col. B. T. Simmons, prohibition administrator of Florida, stated, and pointed out that experts recently tested a quantity of "Canadian Club" whisky and proved it to be nothing but colored alcohol.

Wines Are Scarce.
This brand of alleged bonded whisky has been selling along the west coast for $8 and is expected to go as high as $15 or $20 before Christmas.

About the only kind of intoxicants not being adulterated, officials say, is champagne and wine, of which there is a pronounced scarcity.

Cossacks Refuse to Violate Old Tombs

The similarity of the burial mounds in Siberia, north of the Gobi, with those several thousand miles distant on the Black sea, seems to indicate that they were built by the Mongols—perhaps in the age of Genghis Khan, perhaps in the day of Tamerlane (as we call Timur-lang). Perhaps in the time of the khans of central Asia—the Golden Horde, etc.—in the sixteenth century. No one knows for certain.

There are also found in the steppes curious stone warriors and women that face always to the east. And I think the figure monuments of Siberia are very much like them. The Cossacks relate that when these stone women are carried away, to make gate posts for a house in some Russian village, it takes a half-dozen oxen to drag them to the west, although one can draw them back again. Mol, je me sale—

At any rate most of the Cossacks are extremely unwilling to dig up the burial sites, the kurgans. A hundred years ago the British explorer, Clarke, asked the hetman of the Don Cossacks for some men from the village to help him the next day. The men were ready enough until they found out that he wanted to uncover a nearby kurgan. They refused point blank—said it was unthinkable unbecoming—and Clarke did not get a look at the inside of the mound.—Harold Lamb in Adventure Magazine.

Chichester Five Open for Games

On the evening of November 30 there came into existence the W. S. & Co., Inc., basketball team, the same being organized and backed by twelve citizens of Chichester who are cooperating in every way with the team. The captain and manager is Reginald R. Bennett, who would be very glad to hear from any teams within a radius of 25 to 30 miles of the village who would be interested in arranging for games on Saturday evenings. It has been decided to have a basketball game and dance for the next two consecutive Saturday evenings in the Chichester Social Hall and after that they will be held on every other Saturday evening until the team disbands in the spring.

The team is very well balanced, containing some fast players and the residents of the village are looking forward with a great deal of pleasure to witnessing some very fast and exciting games during the coming season. After each game a dance will be held and these dances will be conducted in a respectable and orderly manner. Everyone is welcome and a good time is promised.

Two Games for Kingston Team

Two out of town games will be played in as many days by the Kingston Tri-County League team.

This evening the local representatives will go to Middletown where they will battle with the lowly Middies. Kingston has a good opportunity of winning its first out of town game tonight as Middletown to date has proved the weakest combination.

On Saturday night the Spait outfit goes to Monroe. The stiff struggle staged here Wednesday forecasts a real job for the locals if they capture the game.

FOOTBALL "INVENTOR" TO HAVE MEMORIAL

New Haven, Dec. 4.—Tall towers rising above either entrance to Yale Bowl will form a memorial to Walter Camp, the man who "invented" football as it is played today. John W. Cross, New York architect and Yale graduate, is drawing plans for the towers, which probably will be in place when Dartmouth enters the Bowl next October to play Yale. One set of the towers will house visiting football teams and the other will house the Yale team.

Yale's committee on architectural plan, which is now engaged in the task of rebuilding the University, has approved the tower idea of the memorial, and Yale Corporation has turned the designing of the structures over to Mr. Cross.

British Soccer Star Severely Punished

A British soccer player recently was barred from the game for six months for socking a referee. One might say this is taking the sock out of soccer, sure enough. Both teams struggled valiantly to gain the lead in the last half, but neither was able to advance the ball beyond the 20-yard mark. Toward the close of the game Jackson uncovered a forward pass attack, but without success.

FRIEDMAN, RATED DUB, IS NOW STAR

Brilliant Grid Player Was Ready at One Time to Quit Michigan.

"Bet you a dinner for all the high school coaches in Cleveland you never will make a football player out of Benny Friedman." It was in October, 1919. The speaker was Sam Williamson, now coaching Iowa State (Ames), then the coach of the East Tech High eleven, Cleveland. He was talking to Erling C. Theller, coach of Glenville High, also in the Cleveland high school conference. Theller, who had just returned from overseas, a major and with a flock of decorations for bravery, is a two-fisted Dane, who, when he makes up his mind to do a thing, sticks to it.

Friedman had been a member of the East Tech squad at the outset of the 19 season, but without much delay Williamson informed him he never would make a good football player, whereupon Friedman left East Tech and entered Glenville.

Theller no sooner had made the wager with Williamson than he began Friedman's unwritten history. Benny went to Michigan. He made the freshman eleven without a struggle, and proved himself decidedly brilliant in his studies. In fact, he succeeded so easily in both athletics and classroom, he acquired such self-assurance that he is said to have become less popular than a freshman hero would expect to be.

As he did not relish such a situation he went back to Cleveland during the winter and made inquiries about matriculating at Dartmouth. "Stick to Michigan," said his friends. "Go back, forget your troubles, and make the knuckers like you."

And Friedman went back and he certainly has more than made good. Realizing his mistakes as a freshman, he worked hard to gain the confidence of the coaches and of his fellow students, with the result that before his sophomore year was ended he became popular. Incidentally, he has to work diligently during the summer to earn enough to pay his way through school. Benny is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Friedman, who live in the lower half of a two-family house at 10201 Ostend avenue, in the northeast part of Cleveland. His father is a tailor.

Washington Hurler Had Nothing but Long Hair

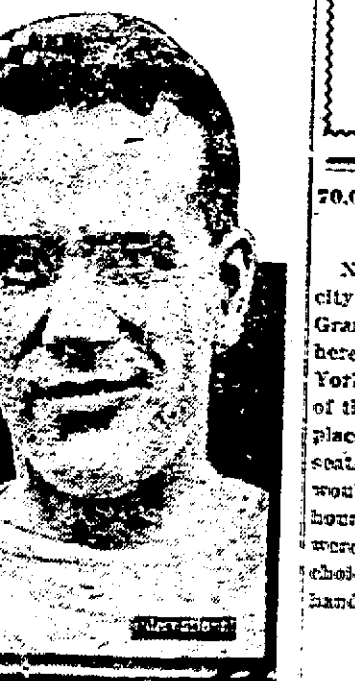

Homer Smoot, manager of the Salisbury team, wanted a young pitcher or so early this season, and slipped over to Washington to see if Clark Griffith had any recruits hanging around who needed seasoning.

The first person he ran into on the field before one of the games was Nick Altrock. He and Smoot are old friends and the latter thought Nicodemus might tip him off to a likely kid.

After due exchange of the kind of gossip that might drop between two old friends, Smoot asked Nick if there were any good looking lads among the young pitchers. Nick was indefinite, but presently Smoot's eye caught a good looking, big chap warming up.

"Who's that young fellow?" asked Smoot. "Oh, he's a collegian," said Nick. "Got anything?" "No, nothing," but long hair," was Nick's comeback.

Ingraham of Indiana

Charles Ingraham of Indiana has had his pete going pretty strong this fall and it is believed in some football circles that his team will be a big factor in the "Big Ten" conference game next season.

Friends and Enemies

Whatever the number of a man's friends, there will be time in his life when he has one too few; but if he has only one enemy, he is lucky indeed if he has not one too many.

70,000 WILL SEE RED GRANGE IN NEW YORK.
New York, Dec. 4.—With a capacity of 70,000 assured for Red Grange's professional football debut here on Sunday, officials of the New York Giants announced that 6,722 of the $1 reserved seats would be placed on sale today and that 2,304 seats in the unserved section would be offered for sale several hours before the game time. There were rumors today that many of the choice seats had fallen into the hands of speculators.
Of Phoenician Origin?
Neurologists are a distinct race of people living in the mountains of eastern Tennessee. They are about the color of wallabies, but have straight hair. They are supposed to be descendants of some ancient Phoenicians, who removed from Carthage and settled in Morocco. They have no admixture of negro blood from Morocco, a colony crossed the Atlantic and settled in South Carolina. From that locality they moved to Hancock county, Tenn. The Neurologists are to a considerable extent illiterate, and are for the most part engaged in farming.—Washington Star.
She Was Skinny, Weak and Nervous
The greatest strength-giver and producer of good healthy flesh in the world is Cod Liver Oil—it's full of vitamins.
But it's nasty stuff—ill-smelling and hard to take, and usually upsets the stomach.
Thank goodness we don't have to even smell it any more, for now all druggists are selling McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets, sugar-coated, and as easy to take as candy, so that you can get the real Cod Liver Oil in condensed form and get just the same results as with the horrible smelling liquid.
Men and women, weak, thin and nervous, are urged to get on weight and get back their health and strength with these wonderful tablets.
One woman gained 15 pounds in five weeks and that's going fast enough for anyone.
Only 60 cents for 60 tablets, and if they don't put five pounds of flesh on any thin person in 30 days your druggist is authorized to hand you back the money you paid for it.
"Just be sure and get McCoy's, the original and genuine Cod Liver Oil Tablets."
